DEMOCRATS TRY TO SAVE FACE IN REVISING TAXES

Roosevelt's Prestige Hangs in Balance.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—With the depression becoming more serious President Roosevelt is battling desperately to avert a repudiation in congress of policies widely regarded as responsible for the business slump.

The first showdown will come in the house this week on the tax revision bill. The President and the Democratic majority in the house already have bowed to the storm of denunciation of the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes to which business men pretty generally impute in large part the stagnation of private enterprise.

Exemption Up to $25,000.

They have agreed to the exemption from the tax of corporations with incomes not exceeding $25,000, but have insisted on retention of the tax on larger corporations as a face saving device, because complete repeal of the impost would be a politically disastrous repudiation of one of the cardinal tenets of the Roosevelt philosophy.

For the Democratic majority which at the instance of Mr. Roosevelt put through the undistributed profits tax in 1936 it is not less politically important than for Mr. Roosevelt to save face as the congressional elections draw on apace. Therefore, there is every reason to expect that the house will approve the face saving retention of the tax in principle which the ways and means committee Democrats devised.

Many Favor Tax Repeal.

When the bill reaches the senate, however, the President will find his political prestige seriously jeopardized. Sentiment in the senate is running strongly for outright repeal of the tax. Of the 21 members of the finance committee 13 have gone on record in favor of repeal.

Likewise on the bill to reorganize the administrative branch of the government the President has yielded much ground and is now fighting with his back to the wall. Under the stress of suspicions that the President is attempting to gather to himself dictatorial powers the administration leaders in the senate have been compelled to exempt the quasi judicial commissions from the scope of the legislation.

The principal question at issue now is whether the congressional watchdog of the treasury, the controler general, is to be muzzled by a provision depriving him of the power to disallow illegal expenditures in advance and leaving him only the power to report such violations of the law to congress after their occurrence. Not even economic royalists are more hated by the Roosevelt administration than this pestiferous watchdog of the treasury.

Byrd Assails Measure.

Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] has declared that the reorganization bill would "freeze" existing spending policies so that the government would expend at least $8,000,000,000 a year for an indefinite number of years. He indicated this was one reason he would fight to a finish against the bill. Preparing for a renewal of senate debate tomorrow, he told reporters several other senators of both major parties would denounce the measure.

To get the tax revision bill and the government reorganization bill through congress with the least possible damage to the administration is now the President's supreme solicitude. And he is not looking for any additional headaches before the election. He has indicated that he will not insist upon passage of a minimum wage and maximum hours of labor bill at this session. In fact he has given the leaders in congress to understand that he will have no new legislative projects to submit before the election.

No New Law on Monopoly.

The conclusion is that the President is not going to try for legislation on monopolies at this session. It is an open secret that he is completely at sea on the question of suppression of monopolies and strengthening of the anti-trust laws. He still asserts that he is going to send a message to congress on this subject some time. It may be nothing more, however, than

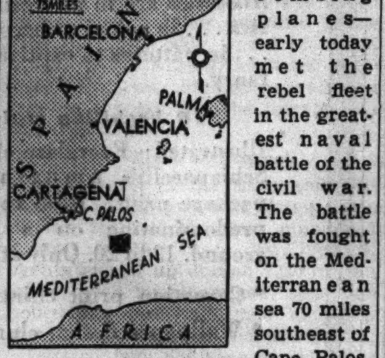
REBEL CRUISER REPORTED SUNK IN BIG BATTLE

British Destroyers Save 400 Sailors.

BY HENRY BUCKLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



Cross marks location of Spanish sea battle.

MADRID, March 6.—The Spanish loyalist fleet—later supported by bombing planes—early today met the rebel fleet in the greatest naval battle of the civil war. The battle was fought on the Mediterranean sea 70 miles southeast of Cape Palos. One of the rebel warships was reported burning and sinking after being hit by a torpedo. Reports to the British admiralty said the warship was the 10,000 ton cruiser Baleares.

The loyalist war ministry, after examining photographs taken by flyers, said the vessel was the Baleares' sister ship, the Canarias. In any case a second cruiser was severely damaged by the repeated bombing by planes, according to various reports.

British Seaman Killed.

Loyalist statements said there must have been heavy loss of life on the torpedoed vessel. Two British destroyers, the Boreas and Kempenfelt, rescued 400 of the torpedoed ship's crew. The crew was believed to number 765.

As the Boreas was transferring survivors to other rebel warships, the planes attacked. A bomb exploded near the Boreas. A British sailor—George Long—was killed and three others wounded by bomb splinters. The two British ships moved away from the scene with some survivors still aboard. The survivors will be landed at Palma, the rebel base, and the Boreas will go to Gibraltar.

The loyalist naval attack, according to a statement issued here, was planned in advance in an effort to end the rebel "blockade" of government ports. The loyalist navy was preparing to "take over the war" while land forces were experiencing a lull.

Scouts Spot Rebel Fleet.

Last night word was received that the enemy fleet, consisting of the cruisers Baleares, Canarias, and Almirante Cervera, accompanied by four destroyers, which, according to the war ministry, had been ceded to the rebels by Italy, had been sighted cruising seventy to eighty miles off shore.

A loyalist flotilla of four destroyers was sent out on a scouting expedition. Then, the republican cruisers Libertad and Mendez Nunez, accompanied by the destroyers Sanchez, Barcaiztegui, Almirante Antequera, and Lepanto, left the base and headed for the enemy.

It was 12:45 a. m. when the destroyers sighted the enemy vessels, which turned immediately and made off at high speed. The destroyer Barcaiztegui fired two torpedoes without effect.

At 2:15 a. m. the fleet sighted the rebel ships again and high speed was ordered toward them. At a distance of 4,000 to 5,000 yards the loyalist ships opened fire.

Twelve Torpedoes Fired.

There followed a spectacular combat, with the big guns of the government cruisers roaring fire against the rebels' more modern guns—the Canarias and Baleares were the newest ships of either force. The destroyers began launching torpedoes. In all about twelve were fired.

About 4:30 a. m. a torpedo from the government destroyer Lepanto hit amidship of the rebel cruiser steaming in the middle of the line. A high column of smoke and fire appeared and it was believed the ship's oil tanks had been hit.

Both sides ceased fire, the rebels apparently to go to the aid of the stricken ship and the loyalist units in order to avoid confusion and the risk of hitting some of their own ships by mistake. The loyalist cruisers and destroyers returned to Cartagena, which they reached at 7:45 a. m.

Word had been flashed ashore, and

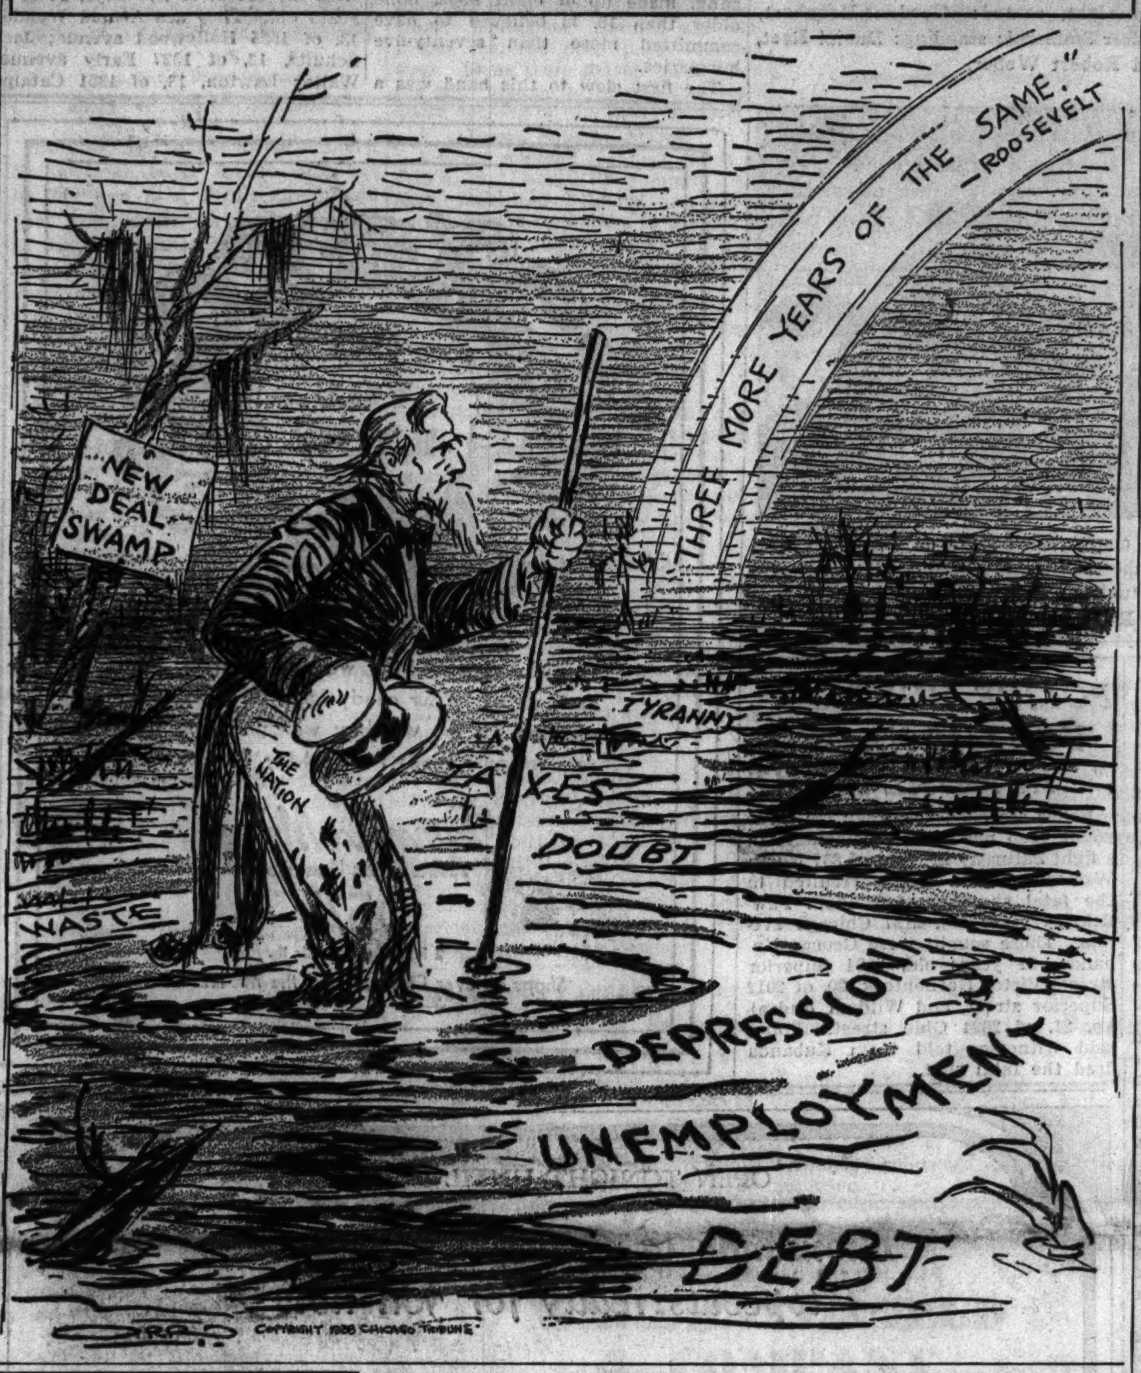
THE PROMISE



OTTO REMEMBERS ALMOST EVERYTHING WHEN HE GOES AWAY

He hadn't forgotten to put the cat out. He was sure he'd fed the dog. But all the way to Lake Geneva, Wis., Otto Peiper worried, Saturday, because he knew he'd forgotten something. It spoiled his visit with relatives, and his drive back to the filling station where he works at 3059 North Kedzie avenue yesterday.

His boss and some policemen reminded him: The car he was driving was one left for repairs by Herman Hansen of 2948 Nelson street, and Mr. Hansen was hopping mad. Police arrested Peiper.

CALLS BIG APPLE CRAZY, SEES OLD DANCES REVIVING

A return to old fashioned dancing was predicted yesterday by Pearl Allen, president of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters, at the association's meeting in the Congress hotel.

A revival of the traditional dances of the civil war period may occur, he said, due to the current cycle of civil war books, stories, and motion pictures. Even the polka, originated in 1840, and the schottische, a few years younger, may come back, he said.

Mr. Allen expressed belief that the big apple and shag dances are fading. "They're crazy fads," he said. Likewise, the rhumba and other Cuban dances have failed to hold American interest, he said.

Falls Into Niagara River; Goes Over Brink to Death

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 6.—(AP)—Clarence Abt, a construction worker, fell into the swift rapids above Niagara falls today and was swept over the giant cataract to his death. Several fellow employés raced along the bank with a life line in a futile attempt to save him. The struggling man attempted to reach one of the numerous rocks in the river but the swift current swept him over the brink of the roaring Horseshoe falls before the eyes of his fellow workers and horrified tourists.

Spring Coyly Hides and Yet Comes Closer

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.
(Picture on back page.)

As the days stretch out and cocks crow earlier in the country and pedestrians along Michigan avenue bend forward against a March wind and look longingly at daffodils in florists' windows, Joe Reichert notices all but imperceptible changes in nature.

Joe Reichert is a poet, a philosopher, and the supervisor of the Palos Park forest preserve headquarters, district No. 5, and he reproaches all of faint heart who think recent snowfalls are an end of the coming of spring.

Spring, when it comes properly, does come slowly, said Reichert, and the recent snow will be a pillow covering upspringing flowers, keeping them warm and protecting them. Snow and rain are part of spring, he insists.

The Most Advanced Sign.

He pointed to the most advanced sign of spring he has seen in his hikes: A little aspen tree whose soft, furry catkins were pushing off the last of their sheathlike shells. "They got just this far during the warm, sunny days recently, and then they stopped. Like the birds, they know what is coming."

The skunk cabbage, the first thing to push up through the forest floor in swampy places, did the same thing. It pushed its spikes up through last year's dead leaves, but halted before opening out. It remains ready to burst open at the first more than hesitant caress of sun.

The Ground Thaws.

In the forest wild strawberries are throwing out little shoots. Soon buds will be sticky and rosinous. Already the lilac is fat with buds, the coiled green leaf showing through the breaking sheath. Everywhere the ground had thawed, the ice in streams broken up, before the recent snows. Only in sheltered gullies did any snow remain.

Muskrats are mating and fighting, and the first moonlight night will see them splashing and frisking along the shores of the wild life preserves in the Palos Park region. Seven mallard ducks and one drake paid a visit to Maple lake last week, and, although the hardest thing in the world is to find a duck's nest, with a few more good days they will be laying eggs, said the forester.

The mourning-cloak butterfly has been seen out of her hollow tree trunk winter spot, and honey bees came out, probably to perish. The crows are starting to build nests of dead twigs in the crotches of oak trees, cleverly setting up a noisy protest if any one approaches a last year's nest, hoping they will not find this year's.

Ducks Along the Lake.

E. G. Wright, curator of exhibits, Chicago Academy of Sciences, in Lincoln park at Center street, added considerably to the record of spring. For a month he has seen geese traveling over, and during the last week ducks along the lake shore. These included Old Squaw, Golden Eye and both the red-breasted and American merganser, the mergansers on their eventual visit to the Arctic circle.

In Flossmoor, tulips were reported an inch above ground. In Homewood, rhubarb was up, and dandelion pickers were seen along a highway near town. August Koch, chief gardener of Garfield park, and his son, Cyril, of Lincoln park, agreed there easily might be an early spring. August added: "But I hope not. The buds are beginning to swell on the forsythia, but if we get too low temperatures now, they will not bloom."

Knife Slayer of Mother to Escape Chair

The state will not seek death in the electric chair for Theodore Danielsen Jr., youthful slayer of his mother, Assistant State's Attorney Morris G. Meyers announced yesterday.

"The crime was done in the heat of passion," the prosecutor said, "and was not premeditated."

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley said the death penalty would be unwaranted.

Grand Jury Will Act Today.

The youth of 16, an only child, will come before the grand jury today on a charge of murder returned Saturday by a coroner's jury. That the consequences of his confessed crime already occupy his thought was disclosed by Prosecutor Meyers, who said the youth asked which prison he would be sent to.

"I explained to him," Meyers said, "that he probably would be sent to the reformatory at Pontiac where he would associate with boys of his own age and where he would be able to continue his school work. He seemed pleased with the prospect of going on with his studies.

Depends on Judge and Jury.

"He suggested that perhaps after a couple of years he might be sent to a 'real prison.' I explained that that depended upon what the judge and jury decide, and later the parole board."

Meyers indicated he will ask for an early trial.

The youth's defense is still uncertain. His lawyer, Edward R. Litsinger, said no plans would be made until after the grand jury indictment and until after two mental experts examine the boy. Whether a jury trial will be asked, a plea of not guilty entered or insanity pleaded, has not been decided.

Young Danielsen passed a quiet day at the county jail, where he is classed with John Seadlund, confessed kidnap-slayer of Charles S. Ross, and four other criminals as a possible suicide, and is watched closely.

Reads a Book All Day.

Whenever any one addressed him, he burst into convulsive tears, but most of the time he was immersed in "Behind the Fog," a book for boys with which he settled down immediately after a hearty breakfast.

His first night at the jail was passed alone in the bull pen. He fell asleep 5 minutes after lying down on his cot and slept soundly until morning, Assistant Warden George Staitz reported. During the day he shared the bull pen with 28 other prisoners. No special treatment is accorded him.

Prison officials reported him courteous and orderly, but inclined to be hysterical. No visitors were permitted, not even his father, Theodore Sr., who sought to give him comfort and encouragement Saturday.

Story of Puzzling Crime.

The history of the youth's crime is brief and psychologically baffling. He had been a good boy, attending Sunday school regularly, practicing on his piano daily while his crippled mother, Mrs. Eleanor Danielsen, 47 years old, looked on.

The mother did not know that he had played truant from school forty-eight days since September.

On Thursday afternoon he entered his mother's kitchen as she started to make a cherry pie. When he told her of his truancy she became angry, lunging toward him, young Danielsen said in his confession.

Then he became confused—as he related the slaying—saw a butcher knife on a nearby table, snatched it and thrust it into his mother's throat. Later he removed it and washed it, but seeing that she was still alive, thrust it in again.

Burglars Drink Choice Wine as They Loot Home

Thirsty burglars broke into the home of Louis Caracciolo, 5410 South Mozart street, over the week-end. They stole jewelry valued at $592 and $400 in Italian currency, which Caracciolo had planned to use on a trip abroad this spring. Also they opened the ice box and drank half a dozen bottles of choice wine.

Boy Keeps Record Clear; Sits on Steps of Church

Cecilton, Md., March 6.—(AP)—Gene Boulden is only 11 years old, but he hadn't missed Sunday school in seven years and he wasn't going to let chickenpox spoil his record. With his ailment he couldn't go to class itself so he sat on the steps of St. Stephen's church and got credit for being present.

2 COLLEAGUES ARE DENOUNCED BY CHAIRMAN

Faith in Government in Business Shaken.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority, made it clear today that he would refuse to quit under the fire of his two colleagues on the TVA commission.

In a letter addressed to Representative Maury Maverick of Texas, Dr. Morgan denounced his colleagues, Harcourt Morgan and David E. Lienthal, and demanded a congressional investigation.

The letter was made public here today at the request of Dr. Morgan, who is at his winter home in Florida.

Assails Berry Marble Claim.

Dr. Morgan denounced the $5,000,000 claims of Senator George L. Berry [D., Tenn.] against the TVA for marble deposits on the senator's land covered by the water backed up from the dams, as an effort to put through a fraud. This claim was disallowed by a commission appointed by the federal court at the behest of Dr. Morgan. The commission found the marble was not commercially valuable and that the senator suffered no loss as a result of its inundation.

The contract for power with the Aluminum Company of America made by his two fellow board members over his protest was not in the public interest, he declared.

In his letter to Mr. Maverick, Chairman Morgan also indicated that his faith in the ability of the government to engage in business enterprises is being shaken by his TVA experiences.

Demands Congress Act.

Dr. Morgan declared he opposed an investigation of TVA by the federal trade commission as proposed by Senator George W. Norris, father of the TVA, and other friends of the government power project. He said that one government agency would hesitate to condemn another. Nothing short of a congressional investigation would be adequate to clean up the situation, Dr. Morgan insisted.

"Unless the agencies of government can penetrate behind strategy and intrigue and get at the essence of what is being done by the government, and unless the government can 'buck up' and look facts in the face, my enthusiasm for government in business will necessarily be affected," he said.

"I cannot see a federal trade commission investigation getting at the root of the matter. One government agency will hesitate to question the motives of another. In my opinion nothing short of a congressional investigation is adequate.

Charges Reports Are Evasive.

"Some of the reasons for my concern are the explicitly misleading and evasive reports, and in my opinion, explicitly false reports, which have been made to the President, to congress, and to the public concerning conditions in the TVA by a TVA director or by the two directors acting in unison.

"With reference to the aluminum company contract, I feel that the relations of the TVA and the Aluminum company have failed to protect the public interest. I have protested to the board repeatedly on this matter."

Although he stated in connection with his letter to Mr. Maverick, dated Feb. 14, that he had not read the memorandum by his colleagues made public on Friday by President Roosevelt, Dr. Morgan said that it was because of its publication that he thought it "desirable" to make public his letter to Mr. Maverick. He described the letter as "confidential" and said he wrote it with no intention at the time of making it public.

Suggest That Chairman Retire.

In their memorandum the two controling TVA directors stated that they could no longer get along with Chairman Morgan, and suggested that he retire.

"I am nearly 60 years old and many years ago deliberately gave up expectation of a public career," said Chairman Morgan, a former president of Antioch college. "I did not seek my present position. It would be pleasanter to resign and do some of the many things I am anxious to get at. Yet, to surrender the chance to make some contribution to decency and effectiveness in government does not seem to be the right course."

His letter contained charges of "conspiracy," "waste," "lack of planning," "evasion," and "intrigue" against the two men who, since the breach developed, have controlled the operation of the United States government's biggest venture into the field of private business. In his denunciation of the Berry marble claims Dr. Morgan said:

Keep Information from Him.

"The public and the congress "do not yet know the extent to which that was improperly handled."

He charged that he had found "Mr. Lilienthal and his staf keeping important information from me," and added that he is "not allowed to have the help I need to analyze properly the power program and the power matters which come to the board for action," and that "under such circumstances it is difficult for me to know what is going on in the electrical division."

"I believe," he added, "that a thorough and impartial investigation would disclose serious defects in the power program."

"There is a practice of evasion, intrigue, and sharp strategy, with remarkable skill in alibi and the habit of avoiding direct responsibility, which makes Machiavelli seem open and candid," he stated. "It took me a year or more of close association to be convinced that the attitude of boyish open candor and man-to-man directness was a mask for hard boiled selfish intrigue; so I am not surprised that congressmen do not quickly see the situation from a distance. Under the circumstances it is fairly easy to make the differences seem like a 'family quarrel' and so to keep the issue confused."

Criticizes Harcourt Morgan.

Dr. Morgan corrected Representative Maverick's impression that Harcourt Morgan was "in the doghouse" by asserting that "by holding the TVA purse strings, by making grants of TVA money to land grant colleges in the TVA states, and by paying the salaries of a very large number of county agricultural agents with TVA funds, Harcourt Morgan is one of the powerful figures of the south, though he nearly always chooses to be behind the scenes."

Dr. Morgan explained that while he was carrying on the dam building program in the early days of TVA Mr. Lilienthal opposed further dam construction at board meetings, though not publicly, and that after the split had developed Mr. Lilienthal took over all power matters and gave to Harcourt Morgan all fertilizer matters to handle exclusively.

"It would please me," Chairman Morgan wrote, "to have a totally impartial board make the most critical kind of an examination of the TVA dam construction program. On the other hand, and in my opinion, a similar competent and unbiased examination of the electrical program will disclose disorder, waste, confusion, and lack of planning to a startling degree."

Two Boys in 7th Grade Held for Theft of Auto

Two seventh grade schoolboys, 12 years old, were in the juvenile home yesterday charged with stealing an automobile. The boys, Arnold Wendel, 1555 Hollywood avenue, and Hack Schultz, 1327 Early avenue, were arrested by park policemen Saturday after they had taken off the car's 1938 plates and substituted 1937 licenses.

Two Bands of Boy Robbers

(Story in adjoining column.)

Police expect to solve between 75 and 100 west side burglaries as a result of the arrest of this group of boys, some of whom were caught while ransacking homes. Left to right, seated: Gordon Urquhart, Norbert Reet, Irwin Bryll, and Walter Smieszol; standing: Daniel Reet, Arthur Kargus, Peter Dudesek, and Robert Weber.

SEIZE 22 BOYS IN 3 THEFT AND HOLDUP GANGS

Expect Solution of More Than 100 Crimes.

Solution of more than 100 robberies, burglaries and automobile thefts was expected by police last night as the result of the arrest of twenty-two boys in three holdup and burglary gangs. Their ages range from 12 to 19 years.

Their youth impressed authorities. Two are 12 years old, three are 13 and three 14, four are 15, two are 16, one is 17, three are 18 and four are 19, an average age of 15.

The gangs worked separately on the north, northwest and south sides, but never used guns, so far as detectives could learn. The northwest side gang, made up of eight boys, none older than 15, is believed to have committed more than seventy-five burglaries.

The first clew to this band was a radio alarm of a burglary at 2844 North Mango avenue early yesterday. Policemen Walter Scully, James Sullivan and John Lancaster of the Cragin station hurried over, saw a moving flashlight inside, and went in.

There they found Gordon Urquhart, 14 years old, 2901 North Narragansett avenue, and Norbert Reet, 13, of 2816 North Mulligan avenue. They had piled up a radio and other loot. On the way to the station with their prisoners, the squad received another report of a burglary at 2607 North Major avenue, hurried there, and in the house captured Robert Weber, 14, of 2722 North Mulligan avenue; Arthur Kargus, 15, of 2642 North Mulligan avenue, and Peter Dudesek, also 15, of 2744 North Mulligan avenue.

Confess; Name Accomplices.

The five yesterday confessed several burglaries, and named as accomplices Irwin Bryll, 14, of 2819 North Mulligan avenue; Walter Smieszol, 15, of 3504 North Hamlin avenue, and Daniel Reet, 15, brother of Norbert. All told they admitted a dozen lootings. Daniel Reet was named as the leader. The boys told police they planned burglaries after school and examined prospective homes for escape outlets before looting them.

Meanwhile Summerdale police had cleared up seven automobile thefts with the arrest of five boys, 12 to 16 years old. They are Arnold Wendel, 13, of 1555 Hollywood avenue; Jack Schultz, 12, of 1327 Early avenue; Walter Lawton, 13, of 1351 Catalpa avenue; Roland Chiaro, 12, of 1315 Foster avenue, and Robert Wemette, 16, of 5511 Glenwood avenue.

Seized in Stolen Car.

Wendel and Schultz were seized in a stolen car Saturday night by Park Policeman Fred Brilla, who turned them over to Detectives James Duffy and Sterling Gaul. The boys named the three others as participating in other auto thieveries. The boys said they took the cars for joy rides, generally attended church services, taking keys from the coat pockets of adult attendants during prayer.

On the south side nine older boys were held for thirty holdups and automobile thefts. One, Harry Callahan, 18, of 7802 Carpenter street, is the son of Policewoman Fleda Callahan. ORDERS WRITTEN STATEMENTS ON POLICE SCANDAL

All policemen of the Town Hall station who were on duty the night of Feb. 26 when two alleged robbers were set free by two detectives are to be questioned at the state's attorney's office. Assistant State's Attorney William B. Crawford said he wanted their statements in writing for court and trial board proceedings.

Kenneth Peters, one of the alleged robbers, was rearrested three days after he was freed, and is being held for the grand jury. No progress has been made in learning the identity of his companion, whom he said he knew only as "Tip."

Detectives Frank McKune and Earl Flannery, who were suspended and held for trial in the Felony court on March 21 for their part in the freeing of the alleged robbers, admitted knowing Peters, but claimed not to know Tip.

"There may be a lot more to this case when we learn the identity of Tip," said Prosecutor Crawford.

WAIT TEN DAYS WITHOUT TRACE OF KIDNAPED BOY

Lake Drained in Hunt; Law to Enter Case Soon.

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Ten full days after he disappeared, the abduction of Peter Levine, 12 years old, of New Rochelle, remained tonight as much of a mystery as it was the first day.

From the home of the kidnaped boy's discouraged and disheartened parents came the same report that has been given out at intervals since the precocious youth disappeared when on his way home from school. In a report to the New Rochelle police headquarters the boy's father, Murray Levine, said no progress had been made in efforts to reach the kidnapers, who have demanded $30,000 ransom.

Drop Passive Rôle Soon.

To all outward purposes agents of the federal bureau of investigation of the department of justice and police still maintained the hands off policy adopted on the plea of Levine that he be allowed to negotiate for the return of his son without interference. In deference to his wishes both, ostensibly, withdrew. There were indications today they would drop their passive rôle soon.

Meanwhile, the waters drained slowly from the lake in Crotona park, in the Bronx, which was dragged by the police yesterday following a series of mysterious telephone calls in which an anonymous caller informed police that the boy's body would be found in the lake. Authorities were skeptical, but it was decided to drain the lake on a possibility the information might be true.

On Trail of Suspect.

As a result of the three calls detectives tonight were reported to be on the trail of the first announced suspect in the case. Two federal agents picked up Joseph Lazzaro, an unemployed longshoreman, after the police had been informed he knew something about the kidnaping.

Lazzaro, who has been arrested for questioning in eight murder cases in the past, denied he ever had been in New Rochelle and insisted he had not been in the Bronx in twenty years. Specimens of his handwriting were taken for comparison with ransom notes received by the Levine family. He was released and warned not to leave the city.

Otherwise the case appeared to be no nearer solution than at any time since Peter disappeared a week ago last Thursday. On that day he left class as usual, at about 3:30 in the afternoon, and has not been seen since.

Home Half Mile from School.

The Levine home is about a half mile from the Albert Leonard Junior High school where the boy was a seventh grade pupil. He usually arrived home about 4 o'clock. When 4:30 came on that Thursday his mother became worried and called Levine at his law office in New York City. The father went home and notified the New Rochelle police.

An eight state alarm was broadcast, giving a description of the boy and requesting that any one found with him be detained. The next day the alarm was canceled, but reports persisted that Peter still was missing and that $60,000 ransom had been demanded for his return despite a declaration of Levine his boy was safe.

Subsequently it was revealed a note had been slipped under the door of the Levine home, a fourteen room house, and it was because of this development the alarm was canceled to give the father a free hand. The note directed Levine to go to a vacant lot near by where he found another note under a stone. Both had been written on a toy typewriter of the revolving disk type.

Sign Is Demanded.

Finally, according to this version, this note demanded that a representative of the family put a green chalk mark on a pillar of the Third avenue elevated system at a designated corner in Manhattan, this was to indicate willingness to negotiate without jeopardizing the kidnapers.

Last Thursday there were reports, never verified, that the parents received a note apparently written by the boy, saying he had a bad cold and begging them to pay the kidnapers.

Later Levine revealed that the kidnapers had slashed their ransom demand to $30,000. He declared in a formal statement that an intermediary had effected a rendezvous with the kidnapers, but that they had failed to appear. He also indicated the time of grace was about up and he would soon call the police.

U. S. May Enter Case.

Since more than seven days have passed since the kidnaping the federal bureau of investigation may legally step into the case at any time under a presumptive clause in the Lindbergh kidnaping act. Incidentally, it was six years ago on March 2, 1932, that Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. was kidnaped from his parents' home in Hopewell, N. J.

MRS. WILLIS CRABB.

Delavan, Ill., March 6.—(AP)—Sherif Ralph Goar today served subpenas on Mr. and Mrs. Willis Crabb and their son, James, to testify Tuesday at the resumption of an inquest into the death of Mrs. Betty Crabb, 19 years old, bride of James.

Neither Crabb, a bank president, his wife, nor son was called to testify when the inquest was opened last Friday.

Mrs. Betty Crabb was found dead, a bullet wound in her right breast, early last Tuesday, in a room the newlyweds occupied in the home of the bridegroom's father.

Coroner Nelson Wright said his inquiry failed to establish a motive for suicide and was continued to permit further investigation.

FIRE ROUTS 2,000 FROM SLUMBER IN 44 STORY HOTEL

Guests End Night on Cots in Lobby of New Yorker.

New York, March 6.—(AP)—Flames and smoke roaring up a huge ventilating shaft from a sub-basement to the top of the 44 story Hotel New Yorker, one of the world's largest hostelries, roused 2,000 sleeping guests into wide awake excitement early today.

Smoke poured through corridors, bringing the hurriedly awakened guests from their rooms in pajamas or night gowns.

The shaft blaze, feeding on kitchen grease on the walls and on tape wrapped steampipes inside the duct, mounted in intensity as it raced skyward. Emergency firemen and employés manned hose lines on each floor. Some were driven back when the heat became so terrific that steel doors opening on the shaft buckled.

Guest Sounds Alarm.

A guest sounded the first alarm at 4:15 a. m. George Riley, night manager, mobilized bellboys and other employés and sent them to the upper floors to rout slumbering guests. Simultaneously the fire alarm rang out on each floor.

Firemen played streams of water on the flames from various vantage points between the subcellar kitchen and the roof, operating on the 17th, 24th, 32d, 33d and 44th floors.

As the early alarm sounded, Anne Reilly of Philadelphia, a telephone operator here on vacation, hurried in pajamas to the hotel switchboard on the 41st floor. There she assisted two women night operators who were swamped with calls.

Newlyweds Driven Out.

Among those routed from their room were a bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hansa. The groom, 29 years old, a geological engineer of Wichita, Kas., and his bride, Kaja, 26, were married Saturday night.

Along with 300 other guests, mostly women, the newlyweds passed the late hours of their bridal night in the lobby. Cots, couches and blankets were provided, along with hot coffee, transforming the richly appointed lobby into a temporary refugee camp.

Some water seeped into the lobby, and several hours after the flames were extinguished pumps still were at work emptying the basement.

REBEL WARSHIP IS TORPEDOED IN SPANISH BATTLE

Fleets and Planes Clash in Mediterranean.

soon after dawn seven government bombers headed in the direction of the burning ship. On their arrival they sighted seven ships near by. The planes began bombing immediately [at 7:18 a. m.] and the ships steamed away quickly leaving a trail of white churned water in their wake.

Tonight the war ministry exhibited photographs of the first bombardment. The photographs showed the stern of the Canarias, a smaller boat, and another one several hundred yards to one side. A third boat was about a mile away and two more were distinguishable fleeing from the scene at full speed. White bursts of water spouting into the air were shown indicating the point where four bombs exploded close to the Canarias.

Vice Admiral Miguel Buiza, head of the naval staf, declared the two ships nearest the Canarias were destroyers of Italian origin.

Second Cruiser Hit.

The bombers made two raids on the ships untouched by anti-aircraft fire, and returned to their base. Shortly afterward they returned again and in the course of the afternoon made four other raids. At the time of the second raid a cruiser, which the loyalists believed to be the Baleares, came up again together with two smaller warships. The pilots reported hitting the second cruiser and seeing a column of smoke of smoke rise.

The war ministry at the time of the first bombing attack broadcast a warning to foreign ships against risking an attempt to approach the torpedoed cruiser, since government bombers might renew the attack on her to prevent rebel ships going to the rescue.

The British ships Boreas and Kempenfelt, engaged in the anti-piracy patrol in the Mediterranean, had heard the first gunfire and rushed to the scene. Warnings were sent to the Mediterranean fleet steaming from Malta for spring maneuvers to stand by in case of need. The Boreas and Kempenfelt pulled away after the first bombing.

Called Loyalist Victory.

Today's loyalist activities are considered of the highest importance in government circles. Foreign Minister José Giral Pereira remarked:

"The engagement is as important as was the Teruel campaign, for it inaugurates a new phase in the war activities of the navy."

It is contended that the rebels have never been able to establish a blockade despite the fact that it has been twice declared since November, 1936. If the rebel fleet can be crippled it can then be demonstrated that the rebels are not in a position to perform blockade operations so the Franco régime would not be able to demand the status of a belligerent.

The national defense ministry telegraphed Admiral Luis de Rubieta, commander in chief of the battle fleet, to congratulate the entire personnel "for the brilliant result of the combat."

Neutrals Attacked Many Times.

The rebel efforts to enforce a blockade of the Mediterranean coast of Spain have given rise to one of the most dangerous threats to European peace growing out of the civil war.

Neutral shipping repeatedly has been attacked and time and again it has seemed that only the desperate juggling of the nonintervention nations prevented the civil war from spreading to the rest of Europe.

After one of the most serious waves of attacks on foreign ships, Great Britain, France, and Italy joined forces last fall to establish an international patrol to sweep "piracy" from the Mediterranean. Ships of the three powers were ordered to fire to sink any surface vessel, submarine or plane attacking neutral vessels.

Barcelona Bombed 10th Time.

BARCELONA, Spain, March 6.—(AP)—Two rebel planes bombed this temporary capital of government Spain today for the tenth time in thirty-six hours. Only four persons were wounded and some small buildings damaged.

DIES AT 82 IN HOME.

William Barrett, 82 years old, 548 North Lavergne avenue, for twenty years a stockroom employé of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., died of a heart attack in his home yesterday.

Spanish Rebel Warship Torpedoed in Naval Battle

The 10,000 ton cruiser Baleares, reported to have been torpedoed and bombed in naval engagement between Spanish insurgent and loyalist fleets off Cape Palos, in the Mediterranean sea.

STORM BATTERS GERMAN CRUISER; 700 MEN ABOARD

BERLIN, March 6.—(AP)—The 6,000 ton German cruiser Koeln with 700 men aboard radioed for assistance in entering Trondhjem fiord off the Norwegian coast today after a raging North Atlantic storm crippled her engines.

Naval sources said the Koeln requested tugs from the Norwegian ports of Aalesund and Roervik help her enter the fiord. A report from Oslo said salvage steamers went to the Koeln's assistance from Roervik. The cruiser, launched in 1928, has been inspecting the German fishing fleet.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 6.—Five thousand Italian troops landed at Cadiz, rebel held port of Spain, during the past week, the Daily Herald's Gibraltar correspondent reported tonight on the eve of the start of Anglo-Italian friendship talks. CHINESE DISPEL JAPAN'S DREAM OF QUICK VICTORY

Plan for 3 Months' War Moves to Ninth Month.

BY JAMES A. MILLS.

HANKOW, China, March 6.—(AP)—Japan's war against China, which the Japanese expected to finish in three months, will be eight months old tomorrow. This shows how gravely the island invaders underestimated China's strength.

The Chinese still are far from defeated. Morale seems never to have been higher. From Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek down to the humblest coolie the Chinese say they will fight on until either Japan is exhausted financially and economically or China collapses from lack of arms and munitions.

China is estimated to have suffered 500,000 casualties [dead and wounded] in the eight months of fighting. Japan's losses are placed by Chinese and foreign military experts at over 200,000.

4,000,000 Men Available.

Chiang told me China still can muster 2,000,000 trained soldiers, with another 2,000,000 in reserve, and an almost exhaustless reservoir of man power to draw upon for future needs. On the other hand, the generalissimo said, Japan cannot afford to send another single division of its regular troops from Japan, Corea, Manchukuo, or Formosa without exposing the internal situation in those areas to great danger.

Foreign military experts declare that the Japanese have strung out their lines to such great lengths and have scattered their forces over so wide an area that they will require an additional 150,000 reinforcement to hold their present positions.

China's air force, which for some months was so reduced in strength and numbers of airplanes that it could not engage in offensive operations on any scale, is now sufficiently strong to carry out bombing operations over the Japanese lines.

Numerous American Pilots.

In recent weeks China's Foreign Legion of Aviators, in which there are numerous American pilots, has had notable success against the Japanese, shooting down a considerable number of enemy planes and causing serious casualties among the Japanese troops and artillerymen, the Chinese claim. In these bombing operations over the Japanese lines the American airmen are usually given the leadership, an honor the soviet flyers coveted.

According to official estimates, Japan since the war began on July 7, 1937, has lost to date approximately 400 airplanes at the hands of the Chinese air defense corps, while the Chinese have lost in the neighborhood of 350. These losses include those machines which crashed owing to mechanical or other difficulties.

Claim Blockade Ineffective.

In spite of the fact that Japan has instituted a naval blockade of the entire Chinese coast, has secured control of most of the country's main railroad lines, and is in a position to bomb most of the highways, the Chinese government has succeeded in keeping up a steady supply of munitions, airplanes, food supplies, and other war needs. A high official told me the government now has on hand sufficient munitions to last a whole year.

Another heartening factor, the Chinese say, is that the government is now training soldiers, officers, and aviators on a nation-wide scale.

An edifice of hatred against Japan has been built up which may take generations to remove. The boycott of Japanese goods has reached a point where not even a Japanese spool of thread or a piece of cotton cloth is seen. For a tradesman to sell Japanese goods is virtually to invite death.

SLAP JUST A TAP ON COLLAR, JAP SENTRY CLAIMS

SHANGHAI, March 7 [Monday].—(AP)—A Japanese army spokesman said today the Japanese sentry accused of slapping Miss Grace Brady, an American school teacher here, reported he merely "deterred her by touching her coat collar."

The official said an investigation disclosed the sentry became suspicious of Miss Brady because she was wearing a heavy coat. He attempted to halt her for questioning. He said Miss Brady, a teacher in St. Mary's hall Episcopal school, tried to evade the sentry by walking away. She was en route from the school to the international settlement, a short distance away. Miss Brady formerly lived in San Diego, Cal.

United States Consul General Clarence E. Gauss protested the incident to Japanese army authorities Saturday. According to information he presented the authorities the sentry struck Miss Brady while she was opening a book bag which the Japanese had asked to examine.

Chases Bandit

Mrs. Margaret Klick with Ginger, which drove a robber out of the family store at 2057 North Oakley avenue and into the arms of police.

Raymond Frenzel, 1628 North Honoré street, has no great fondness for dogs, especially since his experience Saturday night. When he attempted to rob Mrs. Catherine Klick in her store at 2057 North Oakley avenue the victim's husband, Anthony, sicked his dog, Ginger, on Frenzel. The would-be robber ran into the street with the dog snapping at his legs. A passerby aided Ginger by grasping Frenzel and holding him until a Shakespeare avenue police squad arrived.

Police found a toy pistol in Frenzel's possession. He admitted, they said, robbing Nathan Fishman, a taxicab driver, earlier in the night.

Bandit Gets Woman's Fur Coat Valued at $1,300

Mrs. Claude Griesel of 10240 Ewing avenue found a colored bandit waiting last night when she stepped out of her car to visit relatives at 6148 Rhodes avenue. The robber took her fur coat, which she valued at $1,300.

JAP ARTILLERY SINKS 150 BOATS, WRECKS ARSENAL

Pound Chinese Defenses on Yellow River.

SHANGHAI, March 6.—(AP)—Long range shells screamed across the Yellow river in northern Honan province today in a Japanese effort to blast an opening in the riverfront and Lunghai railway defenses of the Chinese central front.

A Japanese army spokesman reported a Chinese arsenal at Kunghsien was badly damaged and about 150 river vessels destroyed in the day-long bombardment.

The invaders were reported massing in the sector around Wenhsien from which Japanese artillery pumped shells 10 miles southeast across the broad river into Kunghsien. The latter town lies on both the river and the east-west Lunghai railway which is the backbone of the Chinese central front.

Prepare for Mass Crossing.

The big gun attack indicated Kunghsien had been chosen as the weakest link in the chain of Chinese defenses extending from the Yellow sea some 600 miles west into the interior.

The shelling apparently was to prepare the way for a mass crossing of the Yellow river in the vicinity of the Peking-Hankow railway and its junction with the Lunghai at Chengchow, which is some thirty miles east of Kunghsien.

Chinese sources had insisted that pressure from the north paralleling the Peking-Hankow line had been relieved with the isolation of a Japanese force at Fengkiu which for several days had been a threat to Kaifeng, Honan provincial capital. Fengkiu lies across the Yellow river, less than twenty miles north of Kaifeng and about seventy-five miles east of Wenhsien.

Renew Drive Toward Suchow.

Fresh troops also were moving into the Yenchow sector of southwestern Shantung province, in the vicinity of the Tientsin-Pukow railway, to bolster the virtually stalled Japanese push southward on Suchow, junction of the Tientsin-Pukow and Lunghai railways.

The Japanese reported 2,800 Chinese were wiped out in a big engagement on the left flank of the invaders' northward push along the Tientsin-Pukow line, more than 100 miles south of Suchow. Guerrilla assaults on Japanese garrisons and communications lines in the Pengpu sector had held up the northward drive against the Lunghai corridor for days and the Japanese spearhead had not succeeded in passing Kuchen, about sixty miles south of Suchow.

Bothered by Guerrillas.

Today the Japanese massed troops for a battle with the guerrilla warriors and engaged a large body between Tingyuan and Fengyang, several miles southeast of Pengpu. The Japanese said the Chinese force included bandits and farmers, many of the latter armed only with spears and clubs.

Following reports that 200,000 Chinese troops were in complete rout in Shansi province, northwest of the middle Lunghai zone, Japanese planes reconnoitered Sian, capital of adjoining Shansi province.

Operations in Shansi have been aimed both at invasion of Shansi, China's so-called "Red empire," and at flanking the western end of the Lunghai front. Sian is the western terminus of the Lunghai railway.

THREE IN AMBUSH SLAYING TO FACE HEARING TODAY

BRITAIN IS BEING LED INTO A WAR, LABOR CHARGES

Begins Campaign to Force Out Chamberlain.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 6.—The British Labor party today started what is described as a great campaign for peace and security. Speakers addressed 500 political meetings over the week-end and party workers distributed thousands of pamphlets protesting against Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's policy to deal with Fascist dictators. Five hundred more meetings are scheduled to be held this week.

Maj. Clement R. Attlee, leader of the Labor opposition, addressed meetings at Frome and Bristol. Herbert Morrison, Arthur Greenwood, Noel Baker and A. V. Alexander, all big guns of the Labor party, are stumping the country, while every Labor member of parliament and trade unionist official is being pressed into the campaign.

Reds Join Campaign.

Communists and some Liberals and left wing Conservatives are supporting the drive.

The aim of the Labor party seems to be to make as much capital as possible out of the resignation of Anthony Eden as foreign secretary. In today's speeches the Chamberlain government was accused of betraying the league of nations and lining up with Fascist powers. Orators charged that the Chamberlain policy is leading to war in Europe.

Pamphlets urging electors to vote against the government were passed out. One pamphlet bore a picture of a baby in a gas mask with the slogan, "Stop War, Vote Labor."

Ribbentrop to Visit London.

LONDON, March 6.—(AP)—The immediate future of the British engineered plan for a new four power pact to secure European peace appears to depend on Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's willingness to talk colonies with Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, this week.

Observers attached more importance to the German's visit than to the impending negotiations at Rome through the earl of Perth, the British ambassador.

It was generally accepted that Von Ribbentrop, coming here Wednesday to take formal leave as German ambassador, would say little more than hello and good-by unless Chamberlain is ready to discuss German demands for colonies.

Chamberlain's goal is a general European settlement through a nonaggression pact among Germany, Italy, France, and Britain, but it still is not clear what price he is willing to pay.

FARMER KILLED IN CRASH.

Jacksonville, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—Leroy Gibbs, 33 years old, a farmer residing near Winchester, was fatally injured here last evening when his auto crashed into a telephone pole on Hardin avenue. Two companions, Henry Deppe and Clarence Gray, suffered minor injuries.

U-Boat Pastor Compared with Christ in the Hands of Foes

BERLIN, March 6.—(AP)—The Rev. Martin Niemoeller in the hands of the Nazis was compared today with Jesus Christ in the hands of the Jews in the first Sunday services since the militant Protestant pastor was thrown into a concentration camp by the secret police.

At Jesus Christus Lutheran church, where Niemoeller was pastor in the suburb of Dahlem, one of his colleagues, the Rev. Friedrich Mueller, based his sermon on the 22d chapter of St. Luke.

First the preacher read the Bible story of how the priests and elders seized Christ and took him to the house of the high priest and mocked him and beat him.

Women Sob and Moan.

Then the preacher announced the seizure of Niemoeller by the GSP [secret police] and his transportation to the Sachsenhausen concentration camp near Berlin.

The crowd which filled every seat in the church in one of Berlin's most fashionable residential districts listened tensely. At the words "concentration camp" women sobbed and moaned and a tremor of excitement stirred the congregation.

The preacher said that the action of the secret police showed the government again was using political weapons against the church, "but we are not permitted to defend ourselves by political means."

Niemoeller, rallying point of Protestant opposition to Nazi efforts to dominate the church, was rearrested immediately after the end of his trial Wednesday and placed in "protective custody." He had been sentenced to seven months in prison for speaking out against Nazi leaders and using the pulpit improperly, but the court held he had served his sentence while awaiting trial.

Pray for Seized Pastors.

"We cannot fan the flame of indignation which sweeps Germany as a result of Niemoeller's treatment, for that would be regarded as political agitation," the Rev. Mr. Mueller said.

He admonished the congregation not to weaken and ended his sermon with an appeal for prayers for Niemoeller, who served as submarine commander in the world war, and some fifteen other pastors under arrest in various parts of Germany.

At the end of the service the congregation—in accents weighted with emotion—repeated the Lord's prayer in unison.

Outside of the church not a Nazi uniform was to be seen. There were not even policemen anywhere near. The immediate vicinity of the church seemed like a little world of its own.

Nazis Collect Relief Fund.

But scarcely two blocks away the departing worshipers began encountering small detachments of uniformed Nazis, who swept through Berlin collecting coppers for the winter relief fund.

They were selling Berlin's share of an army of 20,000,000 little porcelain soldiers. One could buy soldiers of every description on land, sea, or air—aviators, sailors, machine gunners, artillery men, infantry men.

"Everything but Christian soldiers," one worshiper sadly said as he left the Dahlem church.

WISCONSIN PRIES INTO PERSONAL MONEY MATTERS

$10,000 Earners Must Record Spending.

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., March 6.—[Special.]—The state government which long has been concerned about the income Wisconsin residents receive now is curious about how they spend it.

Individuals and corporations with gross incomes of more than $10,000 a year hereafter must keep records of all expenditures of $50 or more to a single creditor in the tax year, the public utilities must keep records of all disbursements of $10 or more to any individual, firm or company, and dealers in securities must keep records showing all disbursements.

The decision to have a record of how corporations and individuals spend their money was embodied in orders issued yesterday by the tax commission, the public service commission and the state banking commission.

Orders Grow Out of Suit.

The orders were said to be a result of the state investigation of the H. M. Byllesby company, a Chicago utility, in the tax commission's suit to recover $60,000 from William M. Dinneen, former secretary of the public service commission. Dinneen testified that he had received $18,500 in personal loans from the late Halford Erickson, a Byllesby official.

The order for individuals to keep a record of how they spend money as well as what they receive was included in the tax commission order. It specifies that corporations and individuals with gross incomes of $10,000 a year or more must keep records to show for each disbursement of more than $50, to any individual, firm, or corporation during the year the date and purpose of payments or transfer and the services or other consideration received.

Herbert L. Mount, member of the tax commission, explained that if the $50 total were reached in one or more transactions it must show in the record.

One Way to Evade Report.

This would make the books cover the normal routine expenditures of almost every one in the income class affected. The tax commission may learn how much a citizen spends for milk, groceries and gasoline unless his patronage is spread widely in sums less than $50.

If the $10,000 citizen is convivial and his bar bill exceeds $50 a year in a club or saloon, presumably he must enter it on his record along with his losses at bridge or poker. The order covers gifts as well as purchases.

Mount explained that the order does not compel the $10,000 citizen to report his expenditures, but merely to keep a record of them so that, in case the state desires, inquiries may be answered. He said the first purpose was to have a record available to check against claims for income tax exemptions, but explained the records must be kept whether tax exemptions were claimed or not.

Threat Over Taxpayers.

"The tax commission is not actually interested in what the individual pays for his milk bill or groceries," Mount said, "but if we have a record of payments made we can check them against the income tax reports of the receivers and see whether they have made full reports of their receipts."

The order will affect only the small percentage of individuals, he said, who have gross annual incomes of $10,000 or more.

The tax commission announced it would impose penalties for failure to comply with the order and that instructions would be effective on all income reported for 1938.

Whether the tax commission has the authority to enforce its order requiring individuals and business firms to record their expenditures undoubtedly will have to be determined in the courts, according to attorneys.

"The courts have held that the tax commission has all power reasonably necessary to perform its duties," said Attorney Walter H. Bender, "although I have doubt of their power to compel a record of any expenditure except that for which an exemption is claimed. It would seem to be an invasion of the citizen's liberty."

Attorney J. P. Beuscher described the order as "a foolish idea, that they won't get anywhere with."

Four German and Ecuador Flyers Die in Andes Crash

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, March 6.—Four persons were killed when a Junkers plane crashed while on a trial flight Friday. Those killed were Fritz Hammer and Conrad Butscher, German pilots; Ricardo Weiss, mechanic, and Marco Aguirre, Ecuadorean pilot. The wreckage was discovered late last night in the Andes, near Guaranda. It is believed the plane struck a mountain peak obscured by heavy fog.

Flood Refugee

Lady Castlerosse, as she arrived in Chicago yesterday from flood stricken Los Angeles. She is on her way back to London.

Viscountess Castlerosse, a slender blonde, was among the first seventy transcontinental passengers from the southern California flood zone who arrived at the Dearborn street station yesterday on the Santa Fe streamliner Super Chief.

"We were brought from Los Angeles to meet the train at Barstow, Cal.," the viscountess said. "It was an eight hour ride in charabancs—I believe you call them buses. It was a rough ride in spots and we saw a lot of damage, but it was marvelously managed."

Her main worry among many during the flood was that she would miss the Queen Mary, sailing March 9, Lady Castlerosse said. She has been in this country for two months, visiting "all over the place," most recently in Beverly Hills. Her husband, director of several London newspapers, did not accompany her.

25,000 AT WORK REPAIRING FLOOD DAMAGE IN WEST

Los Angeles, Cal., March 6.—(AP)—A force of approximately 25,000 workers, many from WPA ranks, was enlisted today for the rehabilitation of storm torn areas in Southern California, where 189 are believed dead, 10,000 homeless and property losses are estimated at $65,000,000.

Anaheim, in Orange county, apparently hardest hit by the flood waters, surveyed 1,100 homes damaged or destroyed. Atwood, in the same county, has only one home still standing, and emergency crews await receding waters to begin the task of rebuilding. Authorities said 2,500 persons were homeless in Orange county alone.

In Los Angeles county 34 dead have been identified, 12 are unidentified, and 26 missing; Orange county, 19 identified, four unidentified, 17 missing; San Bernardino county, 7 identified, 8 unidentified, 14 missing; Ventura, 3 identified, 1 missing.

TWIN GIRL, 8, KILLED IN AUTO CRASH; 6 HURT

Woman Is Struck by Car Before Husband's Eyes.

Jeanette Goodwin, 8 years old, of 2105 Huron street, was killed yesterday in an auto collision at Ohio street and Oakley Avenue. Her twin sister and five other persons were injured.

The car was driven by Alex Norville, 18 years old, of 4103 South Maplewood avenue. In the other car, driven by Max Novoselky, 17 years old, 2245 Marshall boulevard, were his father, Isadore Novoselsky, 49, and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lubor of 2216 Division street, Max's grandparents.

Lubor, who is 68 years old, was the only one of the six critically hurt. He suffered a fractured skull. He and his wife, Bessie, 69, were taken to St. Mary hospital.

Joseph Cryer, 50 years old, a night watchman who lived at 5629 North Karlov avenue, was found dead yesterday near Cicero and Devon avenues, apparently the victim of a hit and run driver.

Struck by Two Cars.

Paul Phelps, 57 years old, of 6663 South Michigan avenue, a chauffeur, was critically injured late Saturday night when he was struck by two autos that failed to stop at 66th and South State streets.

While her husband and son watched, Mrs. Barbara Walaitis, 38 years old, of 818 North Cuyler avenue, Oak Park, was killed last night by an automobile at 39th street and Harlem avenue, Stickney. Mrs. Walaitis was returning from a store to the family car in which her husband, Frank, and Ronald Walaitis, 5 years old, were waiting. A car driven by Edward Walsh of 5304 South Hunt street, Summit, struck her.

Another Accident Near By.

Two hours later, and in Harlem avenue four blocks south of the Walaitis accident, a well dressed, unidentified man, about 55 years old, was fatally injured by a car which sped away. He died later in the Berwyn hospital. Stickney police said the victim was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 180 pounds, and wore a brown suit and overcoat of good quality.

Theodore Anderson, 84 years old, 5844 North Harlem avenue, a resident of Chicago for seventy-six years, died last night in the County hospital of injuries suffered last Thursday when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home. The driver was Oscar Mapes, 36 years old, 4340 North Harlem avenue. Anderson was a retired truck farmer.

Unidentified Man Killed.

An unidentified, neatly dressed man, about 50 years old, was killed last night by a hit and run car in front of 5731 Madison street. A rent receipt in his pocket was issued to John Slupak, and signed with a name appearing to be John C. Graise. The victim was found in the street by Edward C. Dalloz, 9105 Cottage Grove avenue, a florist, who saw the hit and run car speed away, but could not get its number.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 168 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county thus far this year. Of these, 135 were killed in the city, where 2,957 were injured in the same period.

GEN. PERSHING SUFFERS DROP IN BLOOD PRESSURE

Tucson, Ariz., March 6.—(AP)—A drop in blood pressure—not enough to be alarming, but sufficient to cause physicians some concern—marked the only change in Gen. John J. Pershing's condition today.

The gravely ill general of the armies spent a restless night but slept this morning. After an examination by the staf of physicians, Dr. Roland Davison reported there had been no significant change in Gen. Pershing's condition since last night.

"The blood pressure is too low," the bulletin continued, "but in other ways he seems as well as yesterday. He ate a good breakfast and visited for a few minutes with Brig. Gen. George C. Marshall."

Her mother is Mrs. Norma Cary of New York, and she is the granddaughter of Mrs. Cora Walter of New York, great-granddaughter of Mrs. Anna Bingham of Nutley, N. WHISKY CARGO LOST 73 YEARS FOUND AT LAST

Bristol, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—A treasure hunter said today he believed he had located the wreck of the river steamer Alice, bearing a $300,000 whisky cargo, which sank 73 years ago.

Frank P. Blair, Chicago salvage operator, asserted his expedition apparently had located the treasure boat 1,000 feet from the present channel of the Apalachicola river, 15 miles south of here, covered by six feet of water and 24 feet of mud.

Blair and his men located what they think is the vessel with a magnetometer, an instrument showing the presence of iron. Over the shallow water at the river's edge they outlined with magnetic readings an area 156 feet long and 32 feet wide, the recorded dimensions of the Alice.

Son of Vice President to Lincoln Dies at 79

Bangor, Me., March 6.—(AP)—Hannibal Hamlin, 79 years old, son of Lincoln's Vice President of the same name and a former attorney general of Maine, died tonight of injuries incurred Feb. 25 in a fall at his Ellsworth residence. Much of Hamlin's boyhood was spent in Washington and his early recollections include sitting upon Abraham Lincoln's knee as the President discussed affairs of state.

WARN MOTORISTS OF CITY'S WORST DANGER POINTS

BY HAL FOUST.

(Pictures on back page.)

The Chicago Motor club yesterday named six street intersections as the most dangerous in Chicago. They are: Central and Grand avenues, 63d street and Ashland avenue, 55th street and Cicero avenue, 63d and Halsted streets, Irving Park boulevard and Western avenue, and 75th street and South Chicago avenue.

There were 197 accidents at these intersections in 1937. Two pedestrians and one motorist were killed and fifty-three pedestrians and eighty motorists injured in the year.

Of the pedestrians injured, twenty-five were hit while walking against red lights, thirteen while crossing outside cross walks, and seven while getting on or off street cars or safety islands.

Twenty-four per cent of the accidents occurred between dusk and 11 p. m. and 27 per cent between 11 p. m. and dawn. George Barton, engineer for the motor club, commented that there is little enforcement of trafic regulations after 11 p. m.

Pictures on the back page this morning note the individual accident record of each of these intersections. They also show peculiar hazards at these crossings, some due to faulty driving or walking habits and others to physical faults such as slippery pavement, poor illumination, or extra wide streets.

"The main causes of these accidents," said Barton, "seem to be reckless walking, and rushing the amber trafic light by motorists."

2 POLICE BITTEN BY HUSBAND WHO RESISTS ARREST

Jefferson Park police confessed last night that they did not quite know what charge to place against Henry Heuvelman, 49 years old, a mechanic, but maybe it would be mayhem.

According to police, Heuvelman is a biter, and for proof of that they have Policemen Victor Baginski and Harold Bernier. The two went to his home at 5702 Patterson avenue to investigate a disturbance, but ran into a bigger one—Heuvelman himself. His wife demanded his arrest. He resisted and used his teeth.

He bit Baginski in the calf of the left leg and Bernier just above the left ankle and in the left hand. They took him to the station, then hurried to the Swedish Covenant hospital for first aid.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

"NO SALE"

By CALEB

AN insurance man we know became startlingly successful several years ago when he stopped trying to "sell insurance" and started trying to serve people he met. The change was not an idle gesture or a set of tactics adopted for profit on his part. He became sincerely convinced that the new way would be a better way to live.

At first he felt there was something artificial about his actually trying to do things for people in the way he did. But he was soon putting the interests of other people ahead of his own consistently because he loved to do it.

He is a young man, but last year he stood sixth in volume production for one of the greatest companies in the country. The year before he was eighth.

Many section managers and salespeople in our store who are notably good in their jobs are eloquent exponents of a similar philosophy of service at any given moment in any human contact. They seem less concerned with making a sale than with pleasantly and constructively serving someone's needs. Recently, with a man on our fourth floor, I reviewed some incidents of the holiday season. I mentioned the Carolers—our holiday-time quartet. The man's face lighted up.

He told me of a frail little elderly lady who leaned against a counter where the demonstration of a game was in progress. She apologized to the saleswoman in charge and expressed hope she was not in the way. Crowds had pushed her about, she said, and she was tired.

The saleswoman ushered her to a quiet corner and gave her a chair where she might rest.

Business was going on as usual in the games section and the saleswoman was missing customers. But the eighty-four year old woman had been buoyed up by kindness! Her gratitude sent the saleswoman back to her work likewise buoyed up, with a new patience and friendliness for the people who were pressing for service.

There is a stabilizing and steadying something which gives those who serve others command of human situations. There is nothing psychic about it. Expressions on the faces of people who like to serve others are without guile.

Many contacts which result in "no sale" in the field of insurance, automobiles, in the department store, or elsewhere, are among the most beneficial that salespeople ever have.

ILLINOIS GUARD PLANS BIG SCALE WAR MANEUVERS

Streamlined maneuvers will be a feature next August of the largest mobilization of the state's military forces since the world war, according to plans completed yesterday. Fifteen days of field training is in store for troops of the Illinois National Guard at Camp Grant at Rockford.

The drive for increased membership in the guard already has added two battalions of medium heavy artillery, a quartermaster regiment, and other auxiliary troops. It is expected that 10,342 officers and men will assemble at the 1938 camp.

Since last summer the government has increased arms and equipment of the 33d division by 155 millimeter howitzer cannons, a high speed tank, new communications equipment, and new vehicles for the medical regiment. The 108th observation squadron is expected to have new high speed planes this year.

The mobilization will require construction of many new buildings at Camp Grant. This work will be completed well in advance of Aug. 1.

SHE RISKS HER LIFE FOR THE Movies

IONE REED, Hollywood's daring movie stunt girl, was "on location." A hazardous stunt was filmed over and over before the "take" was right. Later, during a moment of rest, she asked for a Camel. And that led to the question: "I've noticed that you're a steady Camel smoker, Miss Reed. Do you have definite reasons for preferring them to other cigarettes?"

HERE'S MISS REED'S ANSWER: "I certainly have. Camels are different in so many ways. Going through my stunts over and over is a severe test of healthy nerves. There have been times when it would have been disastrous if my nerves had snapped. So you can see why I think there's no other cigarette like Camels, since they are the cigarette that doesn't jangle my nerves. Camels are so mild. I smoke them all through the day, and my nerves don't feel the least bit frayed. They are gentle to my throat too. After a meal, I enjoy Camels—'for digestion's sake.' You see...in so many ways, Camels agree with me."

MISS REED—leaping from a speeding car to a locomotive. "I know what hard work is," she says. "Many a time I've been thankful for that cheery 'lift' I get with a Camel." Often Ione has time for only a quick snack. "Smoking Camels," she says, "always helps me to enjoy my meals so much more."

JUMPING OFF TRAINS—changing from car to train—Ione Reed faces danger with a smile. She knows what she's doing. She is careful in her choice of a cigarette. As she says: "It means a lot to know my cigarette agrees with me!"

Millions of other people find... just as Miss Reed does... that Camels give them what they want in smoking!

IT'S Camels for Hollywood's star stunt girl—Ione Reed! It's Camels for the famous diving expert—Commander Ellsberg! And for golf champion Ralph Guldahl; speed flier Roscoe Turner; and men and women in all walks of life. They find that Camels are supremely the cigarette that agrees with them. If you are not now enjoying Camels, perhaps you, too, will find that it means a lot to smoke Camels—the cigarette that is made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS, Turkish and Domestic.

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic

FOR HER HOURS OF RECREATION Miss Reed likes cooking...dancing...outdoor sports. And Camels! Referring to Camel's popularity, "Hollywood seems to have a decided preference for Camels," she says. "On almost every movie lot I notice that so many of the stars prefer Camels."

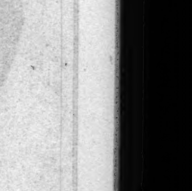
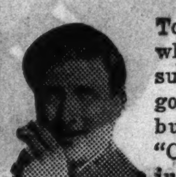
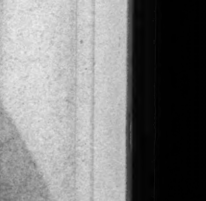
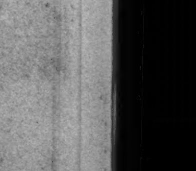
ONE SMOKER TELLS ANOTHER — "CAMELS AGREE WITH ME"









"What cigarette do the tobacco growers smoke themselves?"

"Camels—by a large majority," say planters who know the kinds of tobacco bought by each popular cigarette

T. N. Williams, well-known grower, of Winchester, Kentucky, says: "A planter knows tobacco. My last crop was the best I ever had and the Camel people bought my best leaf tobacco. There isn't any question where the more expensive tobaccos go. They're in Camel cigarettes. That's one reason why I, and most of the planters around here, smoke Camels."

Top prices, that's what J. B. Jackson, successful planter, got from the Camel buyer last year. "Camel doesn't buy just any tobacco—they pay more to get the best tobacco. That means finer tobaccos are used for Camels. That's why I smoke Camels."

"I'm a tobacco planter," says Vertner Hatton, who has grown tobacco for 25 years. "The Camel people bought the best lots of my last crop. I smoke Camels—because I know there isn't any substitute for more expensive tobaccos. Most planters favor Camels."

"It's a fact that Camel uses costlier tobaccos," adds Floyd Smither, who grows tobacco and knows it from the ground up. "Last year I grew a handsome crop and the Camel people bought up all the choice lots. I smoke Camels myself. So do most planters hereabouts."

"I had the dandiest tobacco crop ever last season," says Roy Jones. "The Camel people outbid the other buyers to get the best lots. I've seen that happen year after year at the auctions. So I know they use costlier tobaccos for Camels, and I smoke 'em."

SINGAPORE VITAL TO TRADE; BRITISH BUILD A DEFENSE

And City Provides World's Finest Airport.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlement.—[By Air Mail.]—The letters in the word "news" aptly apply to Singapore—it is north, east, west, and south. Often called the crossroads of the world, it is more so today than ever before. The reason for the present limelight is found in England's trade interests versus Japanese expansion policies.

Across the map in a great bow are seven lands of great importance to Britain—Africa, India, Burma, Dutch East Indies, Malaya, Australia, and New Zealand. They are vital to the empire in her world trade, not to mention China to the north.

Much of England's tea, jute, rubber, cheese, butter, wool, oil, coffee, and the like come from these lands. They have gold, platinum, diamonds, and 60 per cent of the world's tin.

Ships Move Through Bottle Neck.

England knows that her possessions must be defended, and by reason of its strategical position and geographical location the logical base of defense is Singapore. Owing to the bottle neck between the Malay peninsula and the Island of Sumatra all trade in this region must pass by Singapore.

In the early days Russia was considered England's worst enemy in the far east. After the Russo-Japanese war in 1905 Britain signed a trade pact with Japan which expired in 1923. During this interim Japan was looked on more or less as a guardian of English interests in the orient.

The termination of the trade agreement, coupled with the changes in world politics awakened England to the necessity of protecting her own Asiatic and eastern interests. Since 1923 England has been steadily increasing her defenses until today Singapore island is said to be one of the strongest fortified positions in the world.

Base for Fleet and Air Force.

The hills of the 220 square mile island have been encased in barbed wire and are alive with big guns and anti-aircraft equipment. There is a full navy yard with a 2,200 foot quay. Two modern dreadnaughts can be drydocked at the same time, either in the graving dock or the floating dock. There are cranes with 150 ton lifting power. Fuel stores, many underground, maintain a six months' supply.

Seventeen miles of new railroad have been built for ammunition transport. There are four airports on Singapore Island with hangars and modern equipment that could adequately accommodate an entire air force. A British fleet was concentrated here to celebrate the success of the defense efforts by opening the new naval base.

It is said that unimaginative British officials permitted a lot of Japanese to settle on the hills around the island. These homesteaders developed a mania for tennis. Investigation disclosed that the courts were made of thick concrete, perfectly designed for gun emplacements. The Japanese have been evicted.

World's Finest Airport.

The source of greatest pride to Singapore is the new commercial airport. Having three good airfields around the city, any slow minded metropolis would have been content, but not Singapore. The citizens wanted one close in and they got it at a cost of $10,000,000. Scarcely two years old, it is already beginning to pay for itself.

The engineers took part of the waterfront and filled in 7,500,000 cubic yards of earth from a hill five miles away. This provided the world's finest airport, only ten minutes from all hotels and the pride not only of Singapore, but of this part of the world. Its landscaping is beautiful both from the air and ground. Circular in shape, it has runways 4,000 feet long and in every direction. There are unobstructed aerial approaches and facilities for both and marine aircraft.

The slipway on the west side is designed for a load of 84 tons, is 100 feet wide, has a slope of one foot to fifteen and has a total length of 262 feet.

The terminal building is equipped with every convenience and would compare favorably with any transportation terminus. Every city in the world should send an engineer to Singapore to learn how to solve the airport location problem.

Crossroad of Nationalities.

Aside from the present naval limelight, Singapore, which is only 90 miles north of the equator, is truly a world crossroad. Every nationality under the sun may be seen on the island — 428,000 Chinese, 69,000 Malays, 50,000 Indians, and others bringing the total to 572,000. And strange as it seems, the slums and waterfront appear to be less poverty stricken and better supervised and regulated than most seaports of 500,000 population. The harbor is splendid and one can see types of every seagoing vessel afloat.

The streets are wide, well laid out, and clean. Rickshas, cattle carts, trucks, automobiles, and bicycles by the thousand fill the streets, but trafic isn't bad. The most primitive and most modern ways of doing things stand side by side. Natives grinding massage oils out of small nuts by rotating a large pole stuck in a hollowed tree stump — the power furnished by two oxen going around a circle—stand beside a modern rubber refining plant.

Statue of Buddha; Chinese Temple.

In the next block is a great Buddha and a Chinese temple. The Buddha statue is forty feet high, brilliantly lighted and decorated. It is worth seeing even if it does prove a racket before getting out. The botanical gardens, three miles out, are one of the major points of local interest. There is a beautiful drive through the grounds. It is here that a lot of scientific experiments in rubber culture are carried out.

There are many palatial homes of all nations around the city. The most ornate are those of the Chinese. One rich Chinese has opened his private home to the public. No admission is charged, but, of course, the major domo who acts as guide accepts a tip.

The front yard is filled with lifesize statues of every kind of bird and animal done in some sort of porcelain. The back yard is a duplicate of mountain wilds with hidden tunnels and flanking animals. It would be an attraction for any worlds' fair that could afford it. The elaborateness of the inside furnishing is beyond description.

CLINICS FOLLOW SYPHILIS TRAIL, FIND CARRIERS

The importance of tracing persons who either are sources of syphilis contagion or who have been directly exposed to the disease was emphasized yesterday by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. In 1937, he said, the city's venereal disease clinic examined 60 per cent of the sources reported and 70 per cent of persons presumably directly exposed.

The 4,854 syphilitics who came to the clinic told its investigators of 1,327 persons who were probable sources of infection and also named 648 persons whom the patients had exposed by direct contact. Of these the clinic's field workers were able to find and bring in for examination 798 persons given as sources and 453 believed to have been exposed.

74% of Sources Infected.

Of the 798 reported sources of the disease 557, or 74 per cent, had syphilis. Of the 453 exposed persons 181 or 40 per cent were infected.

The board of health's report showed that private clinics treated 4,977 cases of syphilis in 1937 [123 more than the city clinic] but obtained information on only 78 possible sources and eight persons exposed. Thirty-one reported sources were tested, 20 being positive. Seven exposed persons were examined, one being positive.

Private physicians treated 2,955 syphilitics, learned of 35 probable sources and no direct exposures. Fifteen of the 35 reported sources examined had syphilis.

It was pointed out that private physicians and private clinics do little epidemiological [tracing] work in treating a venereal disease case. Health authorities regard this as an essential part of syphilis control.

1,620 Sources Named.

The 3,939 gonorrhea patients in the city clinic gave 1,620 probable sources of whom 804 were examined and 391 found positive. They named 334 persons exposed, 212 being examined and 76 found positive. As in the case of syphilis, investigations by private physicians and clinics were relatively low.

The board of health's five week program of voluntary syphilis testing ended its fourth week with a total of 5,254 tested, an increase of about 2,000 over the previous week. Twenty-seven neighborhood testing stations will be open through next Saturday under the rotating schedule established by the municipal social hygiene clinic at 1121 South State street.

Prestige of Roosevelt and Party in Balance.

New Breathing Spell.

All the items on this program of compromise, retreat, and marking time add up to a breathing spell for business, according to the Roosevelt press agents. The breathing spell is to endure till after the November elections. Then the President, if he receives a popular vote of confidence and a Democratic majority in congress, will resume his drive for economic and social innovations. But while the breathing spell lasts business, according to the administration view, is expected to improve.

Members of the senate finance committee who declared for outright repeal of the undistributed profits tax were:

William H. King of Utah, Walter F. George of Georgia, David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina, Bennett C. Clark of Missouri, Byrd of Virginia, Augustine Lonergan of Connecticut, Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, and Prentiss M. Brown of Michigan [Democrats], and Senators Arthur Capper of Kansas, Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, John G. Townsend Jr. of Delaware, and James J. Davis of Pennsylvania [Republicans].

Members favoring modification but not repeal were Pat Harrison of Mississippi, chairman; Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, Tom Connally of Texas, Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania, Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio, Clyde L. Herring of Iowa, Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado [Democrats], and Robert M. La Follette Jr. of Wisconsin [Progressive].

Assails Punitive Tax.

In the spotlight this week will be those Democratic members of the house who have broken with the President on the tax bill. Outstanding among them is Arthur P. Lamneck of Ohio, a member of the ways and means committee who charges that the proposed punitive tax on closely held or family corporations is designed as retaliation upon industrialists who differ politically with the President. Lamneck, stating his position tonight, assailed the bill as the negation of statesmanship. He pictured the government as crippling in tax legislation the business enterprises it is pouring out billions to aid.

"A tax system which is drawn in ignorance, prejudice, or vindictiveness can seriously handicap an employer in his efforts to carry on," said Lamneck in his radio address.

"Our tax system should never discourage enterprise. It should encourage initiative and employment to the fullest possible extent."

Denounces Tax Bases.

Lamneck said the special levy on "closely held" companies contains "all the evils of the present undistributed earnings tax," and establishes a new principle in addition.

"This idea," he said, "is that there is something inherently vicious and against public policy in the fact that the founders or originators of a business shall continue to own it and manage it."

The Ohio Democrat called the one, two and three man business concerns which would be hit by the penalty "the backbone of the country."

"Putting a penalty on these companies is just another way of crippling owner-management," he said.

"I do not know what was in the minds of those who thought up this curious piece of chastisement. But there are strange, disturbing rumors abroad. One is that the purpose is to 'get' certain large corporations which are controled by men or families who do not agree politically with those in power, or who, like Mr. Ford, do not bow the knee sufficiently to certain policies of the burocrats."

Chairman Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.] of the ways and means committee recently denied that the Ford Motor company would be affected by the tax on the basis of last year's dividend distribution.

BLOOD NOT PURE, WINS TOP PRIZE ON FAITHFULNESS

Oakland, Cal., March 6.—(AP)—Skippy, a scraggy mongrel dog, took the honors at the Oakland Kennel club show today. Through twelve days of storm and snow, Skippy stood by the frozen body of his mistress, Mrs. Winona Ferris, who died in a Sierra avalanche.

Four thousand men and women watched Mrs. A. W. Robb hang two medals, one from the American Kennel club and the other from the Latham foundation, around the scrawny neck of Skippy, who was held in the arms of Carl Foreman, 16 years old son of Mrs. Ferris by her first marriage.

Get at the Cause of Constipation!

You know that constipation often gives you that dopey, sunken, bogged down feeling. Why not get at the cause and fix it?

If you eat what most people do—things like bread, meat and potatoes—the chances are all that's the matter with you is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean what you may think. It's a kind of food that isn't entirely digested, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines that aids elimination.

If this is your trouble, what you need is a dish of crisp, crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need, plus Nature's intestinal tonic vitamin B_1, and iron.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and see if the old world doesn't look a lot brighter! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Moscow Paper Calls Bukharin 'Bandit with Face of a Priest'

MOSCOW, March 6.—(AP)—Izvestia, the soviet government newspaper, scoffed bitterly today at the political philosophy of its one-time editor, Nicolai Bukharin, who, in outlining it, all but read his own death warant.

Bukharin, frail, ascetic theoretician of the bolshevik revolution, is one of twenty-one self-incriminated defendants in Moscow's greatest treason trial. With perhaps less than a week to live they had a respite today from the tense, melodramatic atmosphere of the courtroom.

Called Clever Wordmonger.

Bukharin, Izvestia's editor before his arrest a year ago, was described by the government organ as "a bandit with the face of a rural priest" and an "experienced wordmonger."

The later phrase was evoked by Bukharin's one hour outline yesterday of the ideology of the "rightist-Trotzkyist" bloc on trial—a program calling for restoration of capitalism and political coalition with "Cæsarean tendencies" or fascism.

Izvestia berated Bukharin for talking about programs without going into the alleged spying and terrorism of his allegedly traitorous colleagues.

"Is it possible that a murderer can have an ideology?" the newspaper asked. "No. He can only have an aim—a bloody, filthy, criminal aim. But when the hour comes to pay for his crimes the most hardened criminal often shows a tendency to make it appear he has his own philosophy."

Yesterday in the prisoner's box Bukharin spread his arms and pleaded guilty to all the charges—"even those I did not know about, because I was the leader and not the switchman."

Did Not Approve Spying.

However, he said he had not specifically approved spying and sabotage because he was concerned with "the ideological side."

Over the objection of Chief Prosecutor Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Bukharin had gained permission to say "a few words about the restoration of capitalism." Main points of the program, he said, included freedom for the kulaks [peasants], freedom for individual traders, foreign concessions, slow industrialization, freedom of political parties, and coalition with other powers.

The trial, which started last Wednesday and will continue tomorrow, has brought testimony of alleged efforts to gain aid from Great Britain, Germany, Poland, Italy, and Japan in a conspiracy to overthrow Dictator Josef Stalin.

"Germany, Japan, and partially England" were the powers from which Bukharin said the plotters sought aid with promises of soviet territory.

He said Stalin's drive to collectivize peasants—"which we thought was crushing the peasants"—was a major or the chief cause of the determination to overthrow the régime.

KILLS SELF IN AUTO.

Erwin Schultz, 36 years old, ended his life with a rifle yesterday in his parked automobile at Erie and Linden streets, Bellwood. He left a note, blaming ill health. Schultz lived with his wife and daughter at 226 North 26th avenue in the suburb.

POLICE CAPTURE ROBBER; LEARN OF JAIL BREAK

Bare Secret House of Correction Escape.

The unreported escape of a prisoner from the House of Correction was revealed last night with his chance arrest eighteen hours later as he was fleeing from a burglary in Rogers Park.

He is Sigmund Berkowski, 25 years old, an ex-convict, who was serving a sentence of one year imposed by Judge Francis Borrelli last June on a charge of tampering with an automobile. Berkowski was committed to Pontiac reformatory in 1932 for burglary, paroled in 1935, and seized for parole violation in May, 1937.

Police Not Notified.

To police, for the time being, his escape overshadowed his arrest because they had not been notified of the escape, so far as their records show. It is customary for the Bridewell to notify the Lawndale station of escapes because the Bridewell lies in the Lawndale district, but no report was made there, nor to central headquarters.

Edward J. Denemark, superintendent of the House of Correction, could not be reached for a statement about the escape and his first assistant, Peter Kielminski, said he didn't know anything about it; but Berkowski, from whom police first heard the story, talked freely.

"Last Christmas," he said, "a cell mate of mine, who was about to be released, gave me two sawblades, and I managed to hide these until I was ready to use them.

Sleeps in Parking Lot.

"I started to work on my cell window Saturday night. I cut through two bars, finishing about 2 a. m. Sunday. I squeezed through, and jumped to the ground. My two cell mates were too large to follow me."

Berkowski, clad in Bridewell uniform, managed to get to a parking lot at Western and Diversey avenues, where he slept unnoticed in an automobile. He found an overcoat, used this to conceal his uniform, and last night broke into the home of Marvin Bates, 2316 Lunt avenue, a salesman.

He had changed into one of Bates' suits, pocketing two watches and some change, when Bates came home and routed him. Berkowski slugged Bates, but the latter pursued and caught him with the help of Policeman James P. Walsh of the Rogers Park station.

CORYDON BLACK.

Corydon A. Black, 35 years old, is scheduled to go on trial a second time today for the poison highball murder of his divorced wife, Cordelia. Black was found guilty of the slaying on Jan. 29, 1937, and was sentenced to the electric chair, but the Illinois Supreme court remanded the case for a new trial. His trial today will be heard by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Joseph Sabath. Assistant State's Attorney Richard Austin said the death sentence again will be sought.

SEIZED IN NURSES' HOME; QUIZZED IN GIRL SLAYING

Mack Hickerson, 49 years old, a colored ex-convict, who was arrested while attempting to break into a nurses' home of the Michael Reese hospital early Saturday, was questioned yesterday as a suspect in the brutal slaying last August of Miss Anne Kuchta, 18 years old, student nurse at the Chicago hospital, 811 East 49th street. Hickerson has been sent to the penitentiary twice for sex crimes.

The ex-convict denied that he had attacked Miss Kuchta or had committed any other crimes in Chicago.

He was arrested as he ran down the rear stairway of the nurses' home. When seized by Policeman Jones Franklin, Hickerson asserted: "I didn't go up there to rape anybody; I wanted money."

Hickerson was sent to the Deer Lodge, Mont., prison in June, 1920, for attempted rape and was paroled twice, his last release being in November, 1927. In June, 1929, he was sent to the Colorado prison at Canon City for assault with intent to rape and was paroled in November, 1932.

AMENDING THE CONSTITUTION.

As shown in a previous editorial the process of amending the constitution provided in that document, article V., has not resulted in undue delay, unless we do not regard it as important that our fundamental rights should be protected from hasty judgment. The time it has taken for the states to ratify amendments submitted to them by congress has been about a year and a third, on an average. The repeal of prohibition took only 286 days, and several other amendments less than a year. This is not too much time for a great nation to consider proposed changes in fundamental law.

It has, of course, taken more time in some instances for congress to make up its mind to submit an amendment to the people, but Senator Norris' proposal will not affect that. The only practical method of shortening the period of consideration in congress is to reduce the number of votes required for passage. A new amending plan might require that amendments shall be submitted to the people when they receive a bare majority of the votes cast in both houses. Senator Norris' zeal has not yet carried him so far. His amendment, while it repeals article V., does not change its provisions for a two-thirds vote of both houses. That is the best part of his amendment.

The changes proposed are in the process of ratification, which is no longer than it ought to be. The Norris amendment provides that an amendment shall be effective upon ratification by two-thirds instead of three-fourths of the states. It also provides that amendments shall be submitted directly to the voters at the next general election, if that election is not to be held less than sixty days from the time at which it passed congress.

Is it in the interest of the general welfare that the number of states required to assent to a change in the fundamental law of the land be reduced from three-fourths to two-thirds? In the concrete this means is it wise to make it possible for a smaller number of states to abolish or restrict the right of free speech, free press, free assembly, freedom of religious worship, in short all the guaranties embodied in the constitution and its amendments? This may seem a merely academic question. It may seem incredible that a majority of the people in two-thirds of the states would ever consent to the abolition of any of these liberties. We have seen liberty surrendered by great nations in Europe, but we do not like to think that could happen in free America. We devoutly hope it never will, but liberties may be lost by any people either by violent explosions or by the gradual encroachments against which Washington warned us on the threshold of the national life. We have pointed out in a previous editorial on the Norris amendment the recent and rapid development of the powers of government, of the central executive. This tendency has been unfriendly to all the liberties of the citizen. It has been openly critical of dissent and it will dispose of it when it feels strong enough. Its resources are already beyond any precedent in American history. It is engaged in a propaganda far beyond that of any other government except that of the dictatorships and it is spending enormous sums of public money to ingratiate opinion and create vested interests in the increase and perpetuation of its power.

The popularity of no leader, however convinced one may be of his good intentions, should blind the citizen to the logic of this new development in American public affairs. It does not justify confidence in the security of our liberties. It is moving steadily and inevitably in the opposite direction.

THE LADY IN COMMAND.

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, it is reported from Hankow, has been compelled by considerations of health to relinquish her command of the Chinese air force. For two years she has been the director and executive secretary of the aeronautical commission, having taken over when it was in embryo and badly disorganized. She is supposed to have been instrumental in building up the force, replacing obsolete machines with new ones purchased from Germany and America or obtained from Russia, although the rehabilitation was struck prematurely by the war, in which the Japanese almost immediately took control of the air.

The wife of the generalissimo is well known as a Wellesley educated woman who has shared her husband's ambition for the modernization of Chinese government, industry and defense, a development which must have hastened the execution of the Japanese program for the subordination of China to the great Japanese Asiatic plan. The longer the Japanese trusted to slow methods of penetration and control, the greater it was to be assumed would be the Chinese power of resistance.

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek has endeavored to be the Joan of Arc for flagging Chinese morale as well as constructive re-creator of its technical instruments of war. The Chinese air force has had the advantage of as much favorable publicity as could be put out of the invaded and occupied regions, but it has been difficult to win Chinese air battles in the United States and Great Britain. Every time the Chinese air force has been about to create a very serious diversion or strike at Japanese mass movements or communications it has been successful only in the prospectus and not in the field of production.

These are hardly times in which one would say dogmatically that an inspired Joan of Arc can't run an air force, but there might still remain a bit of skepticism. Reports which give the lady the supreme air command may have been only interesting journalism. Almost any realist in war, if interested in the Chinese cause, would have thought it better if the generalissimo had been fortunate enough to get the service of a good German military aviation man, or Italian, American, English or Russian, and could have recruited soldiers of fortune to fly the planes. If the Chinese could really strike at the extended Japanese lines from the air they might make themselves at least annoying.

THE TVA INVESTIGATION.

Senator Norris of Nebraska enjoys the reputation of a meticulously honest man. He may not be wise but he is supposed to lean over backward on a question of integrity. Still he is trying to protect TVA from a hard boiled investigation. Dr. Arthur Morgan, chairman of the corporation board of directors, also has enjoyed the reputation of an honest man. He also may not be wise, but his integrity is supposed to be unquestioned. He says that it has been impossible to keep the Tennessee Valley authority's affairs honest and above board. He asks that a congressional committee investigate.

Because TVA is Senator Norris' pet piece of state socialism he prefers to believe that its affairs are all right and that Dr. Morgan, its chairman, is all wrong. He wants to sidetrack the investigation and put the inquiry in the hands of men who will presume to begin with that there is nothing to be condemned.

If TVA were a private utility Mr. Norris would demand an inquiry which would hunt for rascals in every Tennessee mountain cove and up every creek.

CARLOADS.

The three members of the interstate commerce commission appointed in 1887 had scarcely taken their seats when an association of retailers filed a complaint against the railway custom of awarding carload rates to quantity consignments. According to the allegation, the practice was discriminatory because the small dealer could not afford to carry large stocks. That there was merit in the contention could not be denied, but, on the other hand, it cost the railways less to handle carloads, so why should the consumer be deprived of this economy, and why should the large dealer pay part of the small dealer's bills?

The railways were instructed not to be too lavish with carload rates, but at the same time the commission recognized that the less-than-carload shipment was an anomaly in moving the country's staples such as coal, ore, and grain. Many such commodities actually moved in trainload lots at trainload rates, particularly coal and ore discharged from steamers. Because a shipload always was a trainload, the commission was able to dodge the issue by calling them "cargo" rates, and thereafter set its face sternly against the further extension of trainload rates. As is well known, this policy has had its backlash. Many unnecessary pipelines have been constructed because the commission would not recognize the economy of the railway trainload principle.

Now comes the truck. In the early development of highway transit operators frequently quoted "quantity" rates to enable them to compete with the railway carload. They also had developed the "truckload" unit with a wide selection of minima because there are one, two, five, and ten ton trucks. There seems no possible way of justifying truck quantity rates because there is no opportunity for economy, but to order their cancellation is to destroy competition. The whole question, therefore, resolves itself into a problem of how the commission can continue to distort logic by supporting the principle of the long established carload, denying the well known efficiency and savings of the trainload, condoning the questionable economy of the truckers' quantity rate, and approving truckload rates that depend upon the capacity of the vehicle.

It has been frequently stated that we have too much transportation because of the overlapping of agencies. Cannot the commission see that the imposition of restrictions i. promoting further surpluses? They should turn toward consistency and common sense by lifting the ban against the trainload rate. The railways should be permitted to quote lower than carload rates on mass movements when such action will prevent the construction of additional boats, barges, and pipelines, or forestall the public demand for uneconomic waterways. The movement of certain great staples has developed to such an extent that the single carload is as much of an anomaly as was the less-than-carload shipment fifty years ago.

DOOMED?

[Grand Rapids Press.]

Representative Fred L. Crawford of Michigan has presented another answer to the President's recent query: Why can't small banks make money?

Crawford has declared that the proposed commodity credit bill, if enacted, "will, through the withdrawal of income, dry up and extinguish the sources of agricultural credits that the farmer historically has made use of and substitute credits derived solely through mechanics of the Commodity Credit corporation."

Government competition with country banks already has been so severe that it has driven many small institutions out of business. Congressman Crawford sees their total elimination, apparently, through this proposed new encroachment into the realm of rural financial credit.

Substitution of government for private credit in the rural areas is not merely a loss for private business. It also is a substitution of paternalism for the traditional community relationships which once existed. The country banker was not the cruel, grasping mortgage foreclosing money lender that the story books have so often depicted. He was and is the friendly counselor and adviser of the farmer and the small town business man, who knew personally those with whom he dealt and whose collateral was the good name and character of his neighbors as much as land or chattels.

The destruction of this fine relationship may be counted in the long run as the greater loss if the rural banker is to become extinct. It is a loss toward which the country is speeding in this era of paternalistic practice.

A MAN ENTERED A RECORDING STUDIO on West Randolph street carrying three live ducks and asked that their quacks be recorded. He was a hunter, he explained, and since live ducks are prohibited as decoys he had hit upon the idea of taking a little phonograph to the blind and playing a record to attract the ducks in flight. This item by way of report—and not in approval. A duck has three quacks, by the way—the contented quack, the flight quack, and the shrill, angry quack.

A SURVEY OF THE EXHIBIT proves the growing popularity of color photography, which authorities say is appropriate for an age of realism. Color photographs of tomatoes on a vine and of an ear of corn by Fideles Harrer in the exhibit are superb examples of realism. The advertising art of an earlier era and of the future also are displayed. Interesting comparison: The mail order catalog of 1888, with its fine type and old-fashioned illustrations of ladies' surtouts, planters' hats, folding bustles, and castor sets with the catalog of today, with a fine color photograph cover and colored plates and the minimum amount of type.

PHILIP GUEDALLA, BRILLIANT BRITISH AUTHOR, visited the hall of prehistoric man at the Field museum Saturday—a black browed man in a fur collared overcoat—and blond young Henry Field, just back from a Colorado lecture and three weeks' research at Harvard for his second volume on the peoples of Iran, was his guide. Guedalla, who is a Spanish Jew and proud of his blood, expressed interest in what he had discovered about the origin of the Mediterranean race, of which the Jews are a part. In a recent article on the Jews of Iraq in "Asia," Field said the Jews have lived in Mesopotamia since Sargon of Assyria brought their ancestors from Samaria about 800 B. C. Originally they were a Semitic speaking people belonging to the ancient Proto-Mediterranean stock, although even in very early times they mixed with other racial groups. What is termed as the Jewish nose was acquired from the Hittites.

Mrs. Guedalla, a tall, handsome woman, is with her husband. They are visiting the Art institute while they are in town, particularly to see a Beerbohm caricature or two. The Guedalla collection of Beerbohm drawings was recently shown at the Arts club. The author is lecturing before the English Speaking union Wednesday evening at the Art institute on "The March of Freedom."

WHEN HICCUPS PERSIST.

If you will heed the old rule—"hold your breath while you count ten"—in most instances hiccups will stop. Another suggestion is to drink ten swallows of water, one after the other. These expedients are useful for the ordinary mild form which comes from a dietary indiscretion.

When the symptom is persistent, however, we recognize that it may be physically weakening, annoying to the patient, and must be checked—perhaps with heroic measures.

The disorder may appear at any time of life from babyhood to old age. If the paroxysms come on habitually the danger is greater, although it is not difficult in most cases to control the impulses. The phenomenon is occasioned by a sharp spasm of the diaphragm [the broad muscle separating the abdomen from the chest], which results in a quick inspiration—breathing in. The glottis [the opening between the vocal cords] closes promptly, hence the clicking "hic."

For the origin we must look first to the diaphragm—its nerve supply, circulation, etc.—as any stimulus which affects the nerves leading to this structure may bring on the complaint. Inasmuch as hiccup is a fairly frequent complication of many diseases, particularly those accompanied by a high degree of toxin absorption, poison from some bacterial growth must be considered. Thus we may encounter the disturbance in influenza, pneumonia, and in many conditions following a surgical operation in which some irritation starts in the upper portion of the abdominal cavity. Overindulgence in alcohol, overeating, or too much hurry at mealtime are well known causes.

We can understand that any kind of inflammation in the organs above or below the diaphragm may be responsible. Trouble in the intestinal tract or inflammation or irritation of the stomach, such as gastritis, may be associated with obstinate attacks. If the gastric pouch becomes distended with gas this may lead to pressure and hence to periodical onslaughts. Occasionally, however, the whole matter will be due to hysteria and here the individual may be put to sleep with an anesthetic whereupon the spasms will cease.

In the persistent variety the exciting factor should be sought for and removed promptly. As a rule, if a body can neutralize the toxins at fault or get rid of them via the excretory organs, the cough will abate. Some patients will obtain speedy relief by inflating a two quart paper bag and breathing in and out of this receptacle. This gives the sufferer an added amount of carbon dioxide. Another procedure is to draw up the legs so that the thighs will rest on the abdomen, thus compressing the diaphragm. Sometimes firm pressure over the cartilage at the end of the breastbone or on both sides of the neck will influence the nerve impulses. A few authorities advise the application of an ice bag to the stomach area. Both the cold and the weight retard the contractions. Among recommended drugs atropine—given in fairly sizable doses and repeated as often as the physician considers safe—is of value.

If routine methods fail we may fall back upon the inhalation of carbon dioxide. The administration of 5 per cent of this gas in oxygen is probably our most helpful remedy. The case is related of an elderly man who had a severe attack of influenza. Hiccup occurred on the fourth day and persisted until the seventh without remission despite the application of the usual aids. The patient was becoming so weakened by his enforced activity that it was finally decided to employ carbon dioxide in oxygen. This plan was successful almost immediately. Within a few hours the symptom returned but was again controled with the gas. After the third inhalation it disappeared entirely.

Fortunately not one case in a thousand will require more than the simplest type of management. But those prone to exhibit the symptom should school themselves—at all times—to eat slowly, avoid swallowing air, and use caution not to overload the stomach.

The whole matter may be summed up as irritation of the diaphragm from some cause. Quieting this powerful structure brings relief.

INCOME FOR TAX PURPOSES.

Chicago, March 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A house is built and paid for by a father for an unmarried daughter. However, the rents all go to the father, the house being listed in the girl's name only. In the event of the death of the father or mother the house would automatically go to the daughter. The father and mother are not subject to income tax. The daughter is. The question is: Does the daughter have to list the rent received for the house in her return even if she does not get the rent?

F. W.

She should adopt a course which she is prepared to pursue consistently. If she intends to claim the advantage of owning the house for inheritance tax purposes, then she cannot consistently deny that the income is hers. If the values are large enough to make these questions important, then the entire set-up should be taken up with an attorney in a personal interview.

COUNTING OUR BLESSINGS.

Boston, Mass., March 4.—We have now had the inestimable advantages of five years with Franklin D. Roosevelt as chief executive. Much peevish and unreasonable criticism has been leveled at him. Let us be just and consider briefly some of our gains:

1. We have a national debt more than 20 billion dollars bigger than five years ago.

2. We have taxes heavier than ever before and the absolute certainty of still heavier ones.

3. We have a present improved system of national accounting [with regular budget and emergency budget, etc.] so that it is now practically impossible to figure how the finances stand. In the foolish horse and buggy days the balance sheet was easy to understand.

4. We have a depreciated currency worth less than 60 per cent of what it formerly was and subject to possible further depreciation if the President desires.

5. We have had what former Senator Moses called the biggest bank robbery on record when the President, congress applauding, took many hundred millions of gold from the banks, giving in exchange paper money, admittedly worth much less, thereby making the national currency of dubious value.

6. We have managed things so as to lose a large part of the foreign demand for our cotton, encouraging Africa, India and South America to raise cotton to take the place abroad of United States cotton. This has enabled us to accumulate many millions of bales at home for which no use has been found.

7. We have put big business and small business in a state of nervousness and fear so that they function far less effectively than formerly.

8. We have put at least three hundred thousand more employés on the federal pay rolls, mostly at fat salaries and many with little to do except to ballyhoo for the administration.

9. We have a great depression [called a recession], and probably more millions unemployed than five years ago.

10. We have succeeded in arraying class against class in the country to an extent previously unknown.

11. We have given Mexico and South Africa and some other countries vast sums for silver and gold, which we did not need and for which we have no use, at far more than the world prices.

12. We did China [before the Japanese attacked it] a great injury by disorganizing its currency system by our silver policy.

13. We have repudiated to the extent of more than 40 per cent our own government obligations expressly made payable in gold, and some of them issued within the last five years.

14. We have the inestimable services at Washington of Secretary Ickes and his oratory.

15. Ditto of Secretary Wallace.

16. Ditto of Mme. Perkins.

17. Ditto of the presidential family.

18. We have a congress so disciplined [with the exception of some reactionaries] that it has abdicated its independent position under the constitution and meekly accepts "must" orders from the White House.

19. We have courts which are less independent than formerly and some new federal judges who are appointed apparently with the understanding [express or implied] that in cases before them the wishes of the executive will control the decisions.

No need of detailing the other blessed changes of the last five years. How can any one fail to remember them and to foresee the happy times ahead of us?

Hurrah for a third term!

SEATS FOR STREET CAR EMPLOYES.

Chicago, March 4.—You published a letter of grievance about the street car men of the Cottage Grove avenue lines, who occupied seats while paying passengers stood. I have been riding on that line for a great number of years and I have never noticed any abuse of their free riding privilege by those men. On the contrary, I have often seen them vacate their seats and go stand on the platform when the cars got filled up.

I fail to see why it should be expected that men on their way to and from work should be under obligation to give up their seats to any one, as it is the surface lines company, and not the public, that is bearing the expense of their transportation.

Under this New Deal brain storm the man who stands upon his own feet is an undesirable citizen who ought to be roped and tied down. WHAT THE ENGINEERS CAN'T SEE.

Chicago, March 2.—For fifty years I have been what you call a railroader. I have noticed that 75 per cent of the trucks or cars which are hit approach the train from the fireman's side. The fireman is helpless. He has to call to the engineer to look out. On some roads the fireman has to get off the seat and walk around the boiler to get to the engineer.

If control of the whistle was given to the fireman, too, lots of lives and property would be saved. Or, perhaps, a periscope could be put on the engine so the engineer could see both sides of the road. He is helpless on the left side. All he can do is to slam on the air. He doesn't know what it is all about until it is over. Costly damage is done to the train, also, such as flattening the wheels.

I hope some railroad official will read this.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 25.—Having been in Shanghai in 1932 when the Japanese attacked and destroyed a large part of the Chinese city, I am especially conscious of and deeply concerned with the present suffering of hundreds of thousands of poor Chinese people.

Great groups have lost their homes, their possessions, their earning power, and are thrown hungry into the bitter winter of central and North China.

The American Red Cross, responsive to the call of human need, is now appealing to the people of America for funds to be used in aiding these sufferers.

Very earnestly I urge you to use your broad influence in supporting this Red Cross appeal throughout your community.

EVERYTHING FOR THE MOTORIST.

Chicago, March 3.—Property owners in the vicinity of Lincoln park are opposing pedestrian bridges over Sheridan road near Grace street as unsightly, although they did not object to the ugly grade separation for autos at Irving Park boulevard. As usual, any project to speed up trafic or avert collisions of autos is considered proper, but any improvement to save pedestrian lives is opposed. Streets are widened, curbs are cut back, trees and shrubbery cut to aid the motorist, but no attempt is made to raise curbs to prevent autos running over sidewalks or prohibiting parking near street intersection crosswalks, the cause of most pedestrian deaths. The result, of course, is a continually increasing pedestrian death toll.

QUESTION.

Chicago, March 3.—Will you please state the qualifications demanded of a candidate for a judicial position in our city, state, and federal courts? This is to settle a question as to whether a judge must necessarily be a lawyer or not. There seems to be a widespread lack of knowledge on this subject. Are there any municipal judges sitting who are not lawyers?

From Across the Sea

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—German match factories have been instructed to shorten the length of wooden matches by one centimeter [about two-fifths of an inch] to save wood, and the public is urged to purchase the smaller variety of matches. A possible ban on the use of wood for heating purposes, because this "valuable material" is needed in the manufacture of artificial textiles, synthetic fats, sugar, glycerin and other substances is forecast by the semi-official Deutscher Volkswirt, commonly considered the mouthpiece of ex-Minister of Economics Dr. Hjalmar Schacht.

This periodical advises the German people to substitute other materials for kindling and logs. "Use peat instead of fallen branches and coal instead of kindling," it advocates, stating that "the amount of wood used for burning in Germany today would free about 9 million steres [cubic meters] per year for industrial use."

The taking over of privately owned woodlands is also hinted at in the Deutscher Volkswirt. "Hope that the demand for wood can be covered by the domestic supply rests chiefly on the fact that privately owned forests yield only between 2.4 and 3.2 steres of wood per hectare [about two and a half acres] per year, while state-controled forests yield about 5.1 steres," it states. The difference between domestic production and the amount of wood imported, it reveals, is about 22 million steres.

The Deutscher Volkswirt makes it plain that Germany cannot hope to cover her demands for wood from domestic sources for some time. In 1936, it states, 10 million steres of wood were imported, and, according to Supreme Forest Master von Monroy, Germany's demand for wood will increase by a further 3 million steres by 1940, an amount which can be covered only by combined domestic production and importation.

A STATISTICIANS' FEAST IS LAID ON WEATHER TABLE

City Isn't as Windy as Most People Think.

Chicago may be known as a city whose lake front is swept by strong winds, but there were more windy days in twenty other cities last year, according to statistics from thirty-two cities yesterday by Frederick Rex, librarian of the municipal reference library in the city hall.

Buffalo N. Y., was the country's windiest city in 1938. It had 105 days when the wind velocity exceeded 32 miles an hour. New York was next with 89 such days, while Chicago had only 2.

Miami had the highest average monthly temperature—75.6 degrees—of the cities that were compared, while Chicago was twenty-sixth with 48.9. Minneapolis was at the bottom of the list with 44.3.

102 in Salt Lake City.

Salt Lake City had a maximum temperature of 102 degrees. San Francisco had 101 degrees and Houston, Minneapolis, and Springfield, Ill., recorded 100. Chicago's maximum of 97 degrees put it in sixth place along with Baltimore, Washington, Portland, Denver, Richmond, and Savannah.

Chicago maintained its place near the middle of the list in comparisons by Rex of the number of days when the temperature was 90 degrees or more and days when the mercury was at 32 degrees or lower. In the former the city shared 14th place with Philadelphia, both having eighteen such days, and in the latter Chicago was 10th with 127 below freezing days.

114 Clear Days in Chicago.

There were 114 clear days here during 1937, the table showed, placing the city 12th in this respect. Los Angeles, with 210, and San Francisco with 165, lead the list. Pittsburgh with 64 and Binghampton, N. Y., with 58 were at the bottom. Chicago was 19th in the number of partly cloudy days with 109, eight fewer than there were in San Francisco and 41 less than in Miami, which was first. A total of 142 completely cloudy days here placed the city 15th in this department.

Chicago was 16th in the number of rainy days, there having been 126 of them last year. Seattle was first with 172; New York was 9th with 138, and Los Angeles was last with only 37. There were fewer days with thundershowers here last year than in sixteen other cities and thirteen cities had more days of fog. In percentage of possible sunshine, which takes into account all the meterorological disturbances, Chicago was 9th with 60 per cent.

March 6, 1938.

THE marketing quota for wheat provided for in the new farm law applies to wheat growers throughout the country, and is not restricted to any designated commercial areas, as in the case of corn quotas.

There likely will be no marketing quota for the 1938 wheat crop. The law specifies that no quota shall be in effect on this year's crop unless the government makes parity payments to wheat farmers and no parity money is provided in the law.

Marketing quotas for wheat will be declared in future years when the secretary of agriculture finds that the total supply of wheat at the beginning of a marketing year will exceed a normal year's domestic consumption and exports by more than 35 per cent. The marketing year for wheat begins July 1. The secretary shall issue his quota proclamation not later than May 15.

Quotas will not actually be applied if opposed by more than one-third of the wheat farmers voting in a required referendum to be held not later than June 10. All farmers whose wheat acreage is expected to yield more than 100 bushels will be eligible to vote.

Apply to All Growers.

When wheat quotas are put into effect, they will apply to all wheat growers—coöperators and noncoöperators alike. Quotas for any marketing year will be on the wheat harvested in the calendar year in which the marketing year begins.

The amount of the national marketing quota for wheat, which means the quantity that is free to be sold, shall be equal to a normal year's domestic and export needs, plus 30 per cent, less the estimated carryover and the amount to be used on farms as seed or live stock feed.

The secretary of agriculture shall declare what percentage of the national acreage allotment will be needed to produce, at average yield, the marketing quota. This percentage of the acreage allotment then will be passed on down to individual farms to determine what portion of the farmers' wheat is free to be sold.

Assume that the secretary decides that 90 per cent of the national acreage allotment will produce an amount of wheat equal to the marketing quota. Then a farmer with an acreage allotment that normally would produce 1,000 bushels of wheat would have a marketing quota of 90 per cent of that amount, or 900 bushels. He would be free to sell 900 bushels from the current year's crop and whatever free wheat he had left over from previous years. But he would be compelled to withhold from the market the balance of his current wheat crop or pay a penalty of 15 cents a bushel on all wheat sold in excess of his quota.

Some Farmers Exempt.

No wheat quota will be applied to any farm on which the normal production of the acreage planted for that year's harvest is less than 100 bushels.

In no event shall the marketing quota for any farm be less than the normal production of half the acreage allotment for the farm.

The law does not provide any specific means for withholding wheat from market under a quota plan. In the case of corn, a certain amount of the crop is to be put under government seal when a corn quota is in effect. Under the wheat quota a farmer will be told how much wheat he may sell, but the law makes no provision for handling that portion of his crop in excess of his marketing quota.

The law defines the term market in the case of wheat as meaning to "dispose of by sale, barter, or exchange." Wheat farmers apparently would be free to feed their excess wheat to live stock. This would tend to work a hardship on corn growers, since they are not allowed to feed corn in excess of their marketing quotas. Wheat has a feeding value for hogs and cattle practically equal to that of corn.

Wheat farmers might comply with the quota plan and yet be free to feed surplus wheat in fattening hogs and cattle to be sold in competition with corn fed live stock.

Chicago Fans Numerous at Hialeah Final

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 6.—[Special.]—The final day of the forty-six day racing season at Hialeah Park drew to the track northwest of Miami on Saturday a large crowd of turf fans, including many Chicagoans who are vacationing in southern Florida.

Hialeah has a small grandstand and clubhouse in comparison with Arlington Park, for instance, but it makes up in beauty what it lacks in size, and it never looked lovelier than it did on Saturday, a perfect southern spring day. About twenty thousand were there to see War Admiral win the $50,000 Widener race, the big one of the Hialeah season.

The sun was brilliant, but not too hot; the sky blue and cloudless, as it often is in Florida, and the breeze pleasantly brisk. All the artistically planted tropical flowers are in full bloom now, including the bougainvillea that covers the west side of the grandstand, said to be the largest vine of that kind in the world.

The flamingos that add a gay note of color to the lake and expanse of turf encircled by the track were haughtily disdainful of the racing, but not so the Seminole Indians, who watched the proceedings from the turf. In their horizontally striped clothes they turned as if on pivots to watch the horses as they raced around the track, and between races the Indians danced and wrestled and paddled about the lake in delicate canoes. The flamingos always are there; the Indians are there only on Widener day.

Chicagoans Occupy Numerous Boxes.

The north end of the penthouse of the Jocky club looked like a section of the Post and Paddock club on one of Arlington's big days, for virtually all of the boxes in that end were occupied by Chicagoans. First were the Warren Wrights, among whose guests were the Carl Leighs of Chicago and their pretty sub-deb daughter, Betty. Mrs. Wright was smart in a gown of Agnes blue and white printed silk, with a large blue hat, veiled in reddish-purple, perched high on her head. Dr. Walter Theobald, Leonard Florsheim, and Graham Smith, all of Chicago, also were with the Wrights. The three men are visiting at the Wright home in Collins avenue.

Next was the Charles A. McCullochs' box and then came the John D. Hertzes'. With Mr. and Mrs. McCulloch were their house guests, the Britton I. Budds; with Mr. and Mrs. Hertz were their daughters, Miss Leona Jane Hertz and Mrs. Robert Levy, and Harry Hopkins, Col. F. C. Harrington, and Aubrey Williams of Washington, D. C.; Robert Hinckley of Salt Lake City, and Harold E. Talbott of Long Island, who flew over from Havana just for the afternoon.

Mrs. Hertz wore white dotted with black and a large black straw hat; Mrs. Levy was in a print with a navy blue background and her brown curls were uncovered by a hat, and Miss Hertz was smart in a powder blue and white printed frock and a large beige straw hat tied under her chin with narrow beige ribbon and trimmed with a cluster of cornflowers and daisies. Mrs. McCulloch wore a light printed gown and a small white panama hat and Mrs. Budd wore a darker print and a larger natural straw sailor with a crown and back strap of red patent lether.

George E. Van Hagens Occupy New Home.

Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, who is visiting Mrs. John F. McCarthy, was in the box next to the Hertzes', spectacular as always in red gloves and slippers that matched the red in her printed gown. Her hat was of fine white panama. Also in a box in the clubhouse were the George E. Van Hagens and their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Van Hagen. The Van Hagens moved on New Year's day into a stunning new home on La Gorce island, a Monterey style of house very popular in this part of the world. They do not plan to re-

Two Lectures by Britishers Headline Week

BY JUDITH CASS.

SEVERAL small meetings, lectures, and informal gatherings will make go more quickly the quiet weeks that mark winter's passing. Philip Guedalla, British author, here with Mrs. Guedalla for ten days, will speak on "The March of Freedom" Wednesday night in Fullerton Memorial hall at the Art institute, under the auspices of the English Speaking union.

Maj. James S. Barnes, another Britisher, will speak on "Europe's War Potential" Saturday noon at the Palmer house at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. The Society for Sanity in Art will meet at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank G. Logan to hear seven speakers, among them Miss Eleanor Jewett, art critic of THE TRIBUNE; Burton Holmes, and Dudley Crafts Watson, speak for six minutes each.

The Mercury theater's opening production at the Erlanger theater, of "Julius Cæsar" will bring out all of the Theater Guild and American Theater society subscribers who are not in Florida or California.

There will be a preview tea for the exhibition of industrial art products of Japan from 2 until 6 o'clock this afternoon at the Drake hotel. The exhibition is under the direction of Suejiro Ogawa, commercial agent for the Japanese government in Chicago.

The Chapel Guild of the Cenacle Convent will present the first of a series of five Lenten lectures this afternoon at the home of Edward I. Cudahy. The Rev. Edward Lodge Curran will be the speaker.

Bring New Name

The name varies from year to year. Once it was beauty operator. Again it was beautician. But right now it is the beauty culturist, hundreds of whom are in or en route to Chicago this week.

The occasion is the fifteenth annual midwest beauty trade show and convention which opens today at the Hotel Sherman, and the item of interest is, of course, human hair, particularly that on the feminine head.

Although daily educational programs and demonstrations will be held in conjunction with the show, the matter of most moment in 1938 is "hidden beauty." Hidden beauty is what a woman always thought she had, but could never quite find.

This year, however, the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association conducted a contest for one who might be termed the most obscurely beautiful girl; in brief, one whose homeliness hid beauty. They call her "plain Jane" and will show how by beauty aids, clothes, and intelligent hairdressing she can be metamorphosed into queen of the beauty ball.

Add Jackets--White in Pig Grain Lether

BY RHEA SEEGER.

More and more good looking lether jackets are available. Suedes in all lengths and styles are popular and now some effective pig grain lether in chalk white.

These latest arrivals have been copied from swanky imports, cut with a rib fitting silhouette, a mere flip of a back peplum, and a belt that goes under clever slot effects. The yoke in the back assures smooth fitting. These stunning white jackets are priced around $12. One makes an ideal top for black tailored skirts or black jersey plaited dresses.

Also in the showings of country clothes you'll find some perfect sweaters. Tagged with a price mark around $6, they're worth every penny. Styled and cut like a snug waistcoat, with short sleeves, they become cozy tops for suit skirts. Some of them fasten down the front with small covered buttons, some are slipovers.

These sweaters look more like smart blouses than their sisters of the ordinary sweater type. All manner of fresh spring tints and colors are plentiful as well as white and a few dark street colors.

Shan-Kar Wins an Effusive Chicago Adieu

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The dance conscious section of the population had a frantic time yesterday afternoon. At the Auditorium theater Uday Shan-Kar and his Hindu ballet were on view, while the Goodman, a half mile away, housed Katherine Dunham and her group.

Aside from the physical effort required of any one who insisted on catching portions of both shows, there was the wearing effect of great emotional excitement to consider. Shan-Kar was bidding the city farewell before he retires to the All-India center for Hindu arts at Benares. Not for several years—never, perhaps—shall we have another opportunity to see this superbly patrician dancer in action.

The audience said good-by effusively, applauding cordially the troupe's successful efforts to make the mythology of India interesting and significant to an alien world. All the delicacies of motion and rhythm —all the exquisite distillation of life which this type of dancing represents —seemed even more moving than usual yesterday because of the consciousness that this was the end.

Miss Dunham is the young colored woman who has studied closely the primitive dances of Haiti and who, with the assistance of her competent group, is able to bring much of their body and spirit to a distant stage.

Miss Dunham includes several items of a sophisticated sort in every program, but the most vivid memory one carries away is of the imperious, ceaseless rhythms of the Haitian dances.

The Medical Bureau and North American Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy brought to Orchestra hall Saturday evening Bertha Ostrar, pianist, and Jerome Wechsler, baritone, Miss Ostrar is an amazing young pianist who has added a beautifully luminous tone to her prodigious dexterity and who can phrase in such a manner that a listener hangs on the next note. She is headlong at times, and clouds her work with too much pedal.

Mr. Wechsler did not prove Saturday that his voice production, diction, or general musical style are up to proper standards.

CIVIC ORCHESTRA CONCERT

BY CECIL SMITH.

The youthful Civic orchestra, conducted by Hans Lange, played an outstandingly attractive program in Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon and played it remarkably well. All four of the works listed were by French composers.

Albert Roussel's "Suite in F," an engaging and successful attempt to pour dissonant harmony and counterpoint into the pre-classical forms of the prelude, sarabande, and gigue, received a welcome, if belated, Chicago première. Berlioz's overture, "Beatrice and Benedict," suggested by Shakespeare's "As You Like It," emerged from the library shelves. An energetic and brilliantly orchestrated piece, this overture might well be used more often to replace the overplayed "Roman Carnival."

Herbert Horn, a well schooled pianist, acquitted himself well in the obbligato part of Vincent d'Indy's "Symphony on a French Mountain Air." The eloquent symphony, two years older than the familiar symphony of César Franck, is startlingly more modern in musical outlook. Dukas' "Sorcerer's Apprentice" closed the program. Mr. Lange conducted with persuasive freedom.

Over at the Great Northern theater yesterday Jenska Slebos, the orchestra's first cellist, gave a gracious and well inflected performance of the d'Albert concerto. The symphony was Schumann's Fourth.

Good Morning!

Some forty-eight years ago Archduke Rudolph of Austria, son of Emperor Franz Joseph and heir apparent to the Austro-Hungarian throne, committed suicide at Mayerling, his shooting lodge. . . . Found dead with him was the lovely Baroness Marie Vetsera, who either died by her own hand or was killed by her royal lover.

"Mayerling," adapted from the book "Idyl's End," by Claude Anet, essays to clear up the mystery of the tragedy.

Here is a warm human drama with a persistent pulsation of suspense; with clouds of prescience, heralding coming storm, gradually darkening the passionate love story.

Rudolph is depicted as a terribly unhappy man. He is a friend of the people, a roué, and a continuous worry to his father and government officials.

For the emperor's sake he makes a marriage of convenience. . . "God grant I may never know a great love!" he sighs. . . . And then he meets at a public park Marie Vetsera, slim, devout eyed, unsophisticated. . . . It is love at first sight for both of them. . . .

From then on their fate is certain. . . . No obstacle is great enough to keep them apart. . . Unhesitatingly, fearlessly, gayly, Marie at last makes tryst with Rudolph and death, when to live would mean separation. . . .

Charles Boyer is tremendously appealing as Rudolph. He sure does arouse the mother instinct in a woman. A creature tortured by chaotic emotions, the prince. Marie's love brings him, apparently, the only surcease he has ever known from the inward fires that consume him.

Danielle Darrieux is a lovely and believable Marie.

Finely intelligent acting is contributed by the supporting players. Direction, staging, and photography are superb.

Dialog is in French, but superimposed English titles are well written and comprehensive.

"Mayerling" is engrossing from start to finish. It is, without doubt, one of France's ace pictures up to date.

See you tomorrow.

The Housewife

If your aluminum cooking utensils don't look so bright and shiny as you'd like, try using a new cleaner, one that's made especially for the purpose. It cleans and polishes aluminum pots and pans without harsh abrasives simply by dissolving oxidation, stains and the like.

Besides restoring your aluminum articles to a mirrorlike finish you can also use this new cream on pewter, chromium, stainless steel, baked enamel surfaces, brass, bronze, nickel, and on the goldlike metal ware some people use instead of flat silver on their dining tables. It's economical because only a thin film need be spread on the object to be cleaned. It's inexpensive. EDITH WEIGLE.

Looking at Hollywood

The Week's Wash

Anita Louise—Reaches elopement stage.

Hollywood, Cal., March 6.—The picture colony talking of nothing but the thrilling victory of Earl Sande's Stagehand in the Santa Anita handicap. The whole country is of one mind that Sande, who contributed superlative skill and honesty to sport as a great jocky, richly deserved winning the $50,000 Derby and the $100,000 handicap. I interviewed Sande after the race: "We bought Stagehand last winter for $8,000 from Mr. Joseph Widener. They breezed him three-eighths of a mile at Hialeah for me, and the way he ran and the way he looked was impressive. It was at Belmont, in a race at seven-eighths of a mile, that I knew we had a great colt. He was running last, twelfth in the field, and finished third, and he looked every inch a champion. Naturally I'm delighted, Ed. I had a lot of bad breaks, and now it seems that everything nice is happening for me, all together." A return on an investment of $8,000 isn't bad, huh?

Backers of Seabiscuit, who felt certain that the 'Biscuit had earned a dead heat, were burned up plenty when the Santa Anita race track officials, after displaying the photo finish of the race, suddenly took it down between races, substituting a picture of the seventh race, in which nobody was interested.

Phillip Holmes is cabling Libby Holman daily from London. . . . Jimmy Grainger, president of Republic Pictures, won $16,000 on Stagehand as the result of a $100 bet across the board in the winter book. He got odds of 100 to 1 to win, 40 to 1 to place, and 20 to 1 to show!!! . . . Claude Stroud of the radio twins and Gloria Brewster may get married any minute. . . . From this column Dec. 20, 1937: "German Baron Barnekow, German war ace, has washed out Delmar Daves in Kay Francis' affections." Page 1 reported their engagement last week. He's handsomer than most of the movie heroes. The day Kay Francis announced her engagement they were filming her in a scene in which she announces her engagement to G. Brent. I thought you ought to know. . . . Eamon de Valera, Irish headliner, is scheduled to come to America next month for a delicate eye operation. . . . When Shirley Temple did her medley of songs in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," previewed Friday night, the audience loved it. What an amazing youngster she is! Jackie Coogan was the only kid star close to her, in the silent days. Not, mind you, that young Mickey Rooney is bad.

Anita Louise and Bob Abbott have reached the Yuma elopement stage. . . . The Stepin Fechit stork will arrive in Hollywood. . . . Judy Stewart won't let Rudy Vallee out of her sight, and he loves it. . . . One of the local writers, always panning movie stars for deserting their wives and taking up with younger girls, has deserted his for a 16 year old. . . . Now it's Shirley Ross and Cesar Romero. . . . Nancy Carroll and Weldon Heyburn are an item. . . . "Stage Door," it is whispered, is the screen play which will win the academy award for a writing job. . . .

Young Douglas Fairbanks is dragging down $100,000 to appear opposite Danielle Darrieux. . . . Monte Banks is the new hero of the film colony. He made thirteen passes in a dice game. Seems to me that there should be an academy award for that. . . . Universal's "Mad About Music" is headed for a $3,000,000 gross. . . . Louis B. Mayer is raving over McKinley Bryant's movie test [he's the good looking kid who got all that New York night club publicity in the Grace Moore raspberry rumpus]. . . . "Boy of the Streets," made at a cost of $38,000 and starring Jackie Cooper, will make more money comparably than "Conquest," which cost $2,800,000. This Garbo flicker laid the biggest domestic egg in cinemas history. . . . Pictures doing big business during the recession are "Snow White," "Happy Landing," "Bringing Up Baby," "Merrily We Live," and "Rosalie." "Goldwyn Follies," "Of Human Hearts," "Baroness and the Butler," "A Slight Case of Murder" are all off.

Sons of the Saddle

INSTALMENT I.
HER UNCLE'S VICTIM.

The light of opalescent dawn was streaming across the silvery sage. In this early morning atmosphere the bleakness of the Arizona desert lay under a veil of mist thinning before the sun. Against a background of castle buttes Karen glimpsed green splashes of palo verde and prickly pear The girl drew a deep breath of delight.

Karen was keenly alive to natural beauty. When the world was too urgent or when the pressure of little people disturbed, she could always find peace in open spaces. That was why she had spent the night at the Bar B B.

The roadster ran up the brown road ribbon to a little hill top and passed a man on foot. He did not try to thumb a ride but moved to one side without looking back to see who was coming.

The car ran down the incline, took another rise, and dipped again. The wheel dragged to the left.

Karen got out, glanced at the flat, and said "Dam!" She did not stand around and look helpless but set to work at once. From beneath the seat she dragged out tools and overalls. Into the latter she wiggled swiftly, then got down in the dust and set the jack. In spite of her slenderness she was muscular. She raised the car, then loosened the lugs and took off the wheel. It was a dirty job. Dust and grease covered her brown forearms. The gloves she wore were entirely ruined.

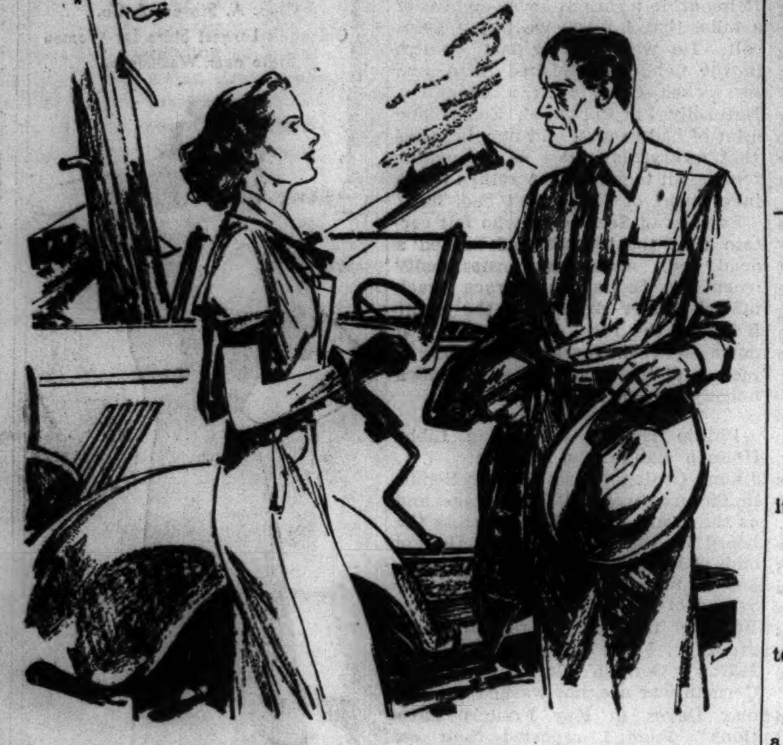
She rolled the wheel to the rear and brought back in place of it the spare. This she found it difficult to fit into the right position, for the jack had slipped and lowered the axel. While she was working at it the pedestrian topped the hill and drew nearer. He was carrying his coat. Karen saw that he was a tall man, wide at the shoulders and narrow at the hips.

"Please, I can't seem to manage this," she said, smiling at him. "If you wouldn't mind helping me——"

To her smile he responded not at all. His grim face did not lighten. But he moved forward and appraised the job.

"Got to block the car," he said. "Bring me some of those flat rocks."

He built a support under the axle, reset the jack more securely, and again raised the car. His brown unscarred hands moved with no lost effort. The wrists were supple, and the flesh of the arms rippled as smoothly as steel pistons.



I can't seem to manage this.

But the arresting quality of the man lay in his face. The bone structure was strong, the expression harsh and bitter. Karen guessed his age at twenty-eight or thirty, but it was plain he had gone through years of hell.

He placed the wheel and tightened the lugs, after which he put the tools under the seat.

"Awf'lly good of you to help me," Karen said. "I don't know whether I could have done it alone. . . . If you are going to Barranca I can give you a lift."

"Much obliged," he said curtly, and followed her into the roadster.

Karen drove fast, with the confident assurance of the younger generation. The valley through which the car passed was bounded by red mesas freakishly eroded to fantastic shapes. Cholla and greasewood fled to the rear.

"We need rain," Karen said at last, to make conversation.

"Yes," he agreed.

Karen grinned. That line had dried up promptly.

Presently she tried again. "The road is full of chuck holes. They don't take care of it because money has been appropriated for a paved one."

Since this called for no answer he made none. There was distinct discourtesy, she thought, in his taciturn refusal to join in the amenity of casual talk. But it might be diffidence. She gave him the benefit of the doubt.

"My name is Karen Gilbert."

His strong lean head swung round sharply. She knew the cold gray eyes were appraising her, with no friendliness.

"Perhaps you know my uncle—Lyn Gilbert of the Bar B B," she added.

He said, with curt hostility, "I knew him, once."

Many men had known Lyn Gilbert to their sorrow. Always he had been a hard man. Nesters had homesteaded water holes his cattle used, and he had harried them from their homes by various means inside and outside of the law. If necessary, his riders had torn down their fences, trampled crops, fired houses. In the end the invaders had to go. There were whispered rumors that the one or two who were too stubborn to leave had found graves in dry gulches under piles of rubble.

Was this man one of his victims? The edge of Karen's curiosity was keen. Her feeling toward her unfriendly passenger was resentment, but back of it was an interest few strangers had aroused in her. It was the combination of bitterness and strength in him that fascinated her. In spite of his comparative youth he had gone a long way in life and found it not good, yet if she read aright the grimness of the deepset eyes, so rigorously restraining an imprisoned fire, there was in him a quality so vital that nothing less than death could defeat it.

"Since introductions are going," he said, "I've been known for eight years as Number 43211, kindness of Lyn Gilbert and his foreman, Curt Ford."

The girl was startled. His challenge hit her like a blow in the face. "I—I'm sorry," she murmured, aware of the inadequacy of her words.

"Tell Lyn I'm back," he went on, and his mouth might have been a steel trap. "Gordon Stone, back with two years off for good behavior."

"Was it trouble over homesteading land?" Karen asked.

"Any talking about it I do will be to Lyn and his gang," he answered bleakly.

They were passing the suburbs of the town and in front of them they could see the brick office buildings and the stores of the main streets.

"Where can I drop you?" Karen said.

"Anywhere."

"I'll stop in front of the Kentworthy Hotel."

He stepped out of the car. "Thanks for the buggy ride," he said, his face drained of expression. "I'll be thanking Lyn later for the one he gave me."

As Karen put in the clutch she saw the released convict turn and walk into the hotel. She had intended to go straight home. A golf appointment at ten was on her schedule, and after that a luncheon at the country club. But she knew she could not get Gordon Stone out of her mind until she found out more about him. Since she was by nature impulsive, she moved to direct action. In front of the Gilbert Building she parked, went inside, and left the elevator at the third floor.

The office which she entered was occupied by a middle-aged spinsterish woman busily engaged with a typewriter and by a small slim man of about thirty. The man had a soft pretty face with a chin just a trifle too indefinite. The features were small. Something about them suggested that he was sly and secretive. His rather fishy eyes lit up at sight of Karen and he came forward.

"A great pleasure, I'm sure, Miss Gilbert," he said.

"Is my uncle in?" Karen said bluntly.

She was aware that Edgar Firkins admired her, and it always gave her an uncomfortable feeling to meet him. Since she was a little spoiled by reason of her good looks and her social position, she expected deference from young men and would have been disappointed if she did not get it. But she classified her uncle's secretary as a kind of human spider. She did not want him crawling around where she would have to step on or over him.

Firkins considered her question. He was constitutionally incapable of being direct. If driven to an affirmative he did not say yes, but wrapped his answer in verbiage.

"You——er——wished to see your uncle, Miss Gilbert?"

"I asked if he is in."

"My impression is that——well, unless he stepped out——"

GUNHAMMERED GOLD

INSTALMENT XLIII.
THE FUTURE HE HOPED FOR.

"Was the money ever found in your possession except when you turned it over to the authorities after you recovered it?" asked Van.

Poco looked puzzled. "No."

"Was it ever known to be in your possession?"

Poco looked at Kate. "Kate knew it."

"A woman can't testify against her husband. Any one else?"

"Shayne gave it to us."

Shayne said: "I'll be in Mexico in a week on a new job. I'll refuse to testify, and I'll fight extradition in case they try it—which they wont."

"Any one else?" Van asked.

"The men there at the mine."

"They're scattered all over the country," Shayne put in. "It would cost a fortune to find them again, and if they learned the circumstances the company would have to spend another fortune getting them together."

"Any one else?"

Poco, bewildered, shook his head.

Van leaned forward and said: "Then I don't see what case they have against you, St. Vrain. Your wife won't testify that you stole it; Shayne won't because he won't be here. The men won't because it would cost too much to get them together. The company has every single ounce of dust. Why would they spend money to prosecute a man who's saved them a nice tidy sum of money? You aren't implicated in either of the killings of their agents. I'll testify you helped me to try and recover the gold after saving my life. You've rid the country of the worst outlaw it has ever seen."

Poco looked from Van to Kate to Shayne to Van again. "You mean I'm free?"

"Not until you ride with me to interview the company and let me tell the story. At least, that's all I'll hold you for." He looked at Cooper. "What about you, lieutenant?"

Cooper said gravely, "I'd like nothing better than to lay this before the commandant—but the fact remains your men attacked a government post and tried to take it by force of arms."

"When?" Poco asked.

Cooper named the night.

"Not that night," Kate cut in. "He was with me in the San Jons."

"It was Cardowan's and Two-Way's men that they had double crossed," Poco cut in. "I guessed that much. I'll even hunt up men that can prove it."

Cooper shrugged. "Then nothing remains except an apology for uncourteous conduct to the commandant, for"—he smiled in spite of himself—"ramming a bill down his throat."

Kate looked up at Poco. Of all people, an apology for anything seemed the strangest coming from his lips, but he looked down at her and smiled.

"Listen to this," he told her, and said to Cooper: "I apologize. I was a wild, hell raising nuisance, and I beg the major's pardon."

Cooper nodded and stood up. "He'll accept. He's a good man, and I think he'd like to hear all this story."

"I'll drop by and see him."

"When you return from your session with the company," Van said. He rose and along with Cooper and Shayne went out.

Poco looked down at Kate, his face strangely puzzled. "Funny, isn't it, that I never knew how all right most jaspers are until you give them a chance. Look at Van and Cooper."

"But not all men," Kate said quietly, and shivered a little.

"Cardowan?"

Kate nodded and held his glance. "Poco, do you know there is $3,000 coming to you?"

Poco grimaced with distaste. "Head money," he said, thinking of the reward money from Cardowan's death.

Kate slipped her hand into his. "Yes, head money. Let's build something with it, something that will last and grow, something strong and decent!" She smiled at him. "Maybe it will remind us of the time when you were traveling not so far from head money yourself."

"Ranch?"

"Yes, my husband."

Poco smiled down on her. "That's what I want, too, my wife."

Kate laughed softly. "Did you ever ask me to be your wife? Did I ever say I would?"

Poco said: "No. But you've called me your husband. Did you ever ask me to be your husband?"

"No. Will you?"

"Sure. Will you?"

"Sure."

And for once Poco saw the future as he had always secretly, quietly, and stubbornly hoped it would be—and he felt humble enough to know he could fight and win with her.

They tell me it really isn't cruel to cook lobsters alive, but somehow I can't bring myself to do it, so I buy mine cooked or canned. But for those persons who like to be sure their lobsters are very, very fresh I've gathered from my files the information about cooking them in the way which the best cooks recommend.

BROILED LOBSTERS.
[For Individual Service.]

Plunge live lobsters one at a time into boiling salted water, and place a cover on the kettle. Let simmer from 20 to 30 minutes, depending upon the size. Remove from water, drain, and cool quickly. Turn lobsters on their backs, cross the claws, and hold firmly while drawing a sharp, pointed knife lengthwise through the shell, from head to tail. Open and remove the intestinal vein and the dark green part, the liver, if you prefer. The liver is edible and may be left in. Lungs and stomach aren't edible and should be removed. Chill lobsters until just before serving time. Then brush with butter and place under a broiler for long enough to heat through. Serve one to a person and provide instruments for cracking the claws. Nut crackers will do.

TO REMOVE LOBSTER MEAT FROM THE SHELL.

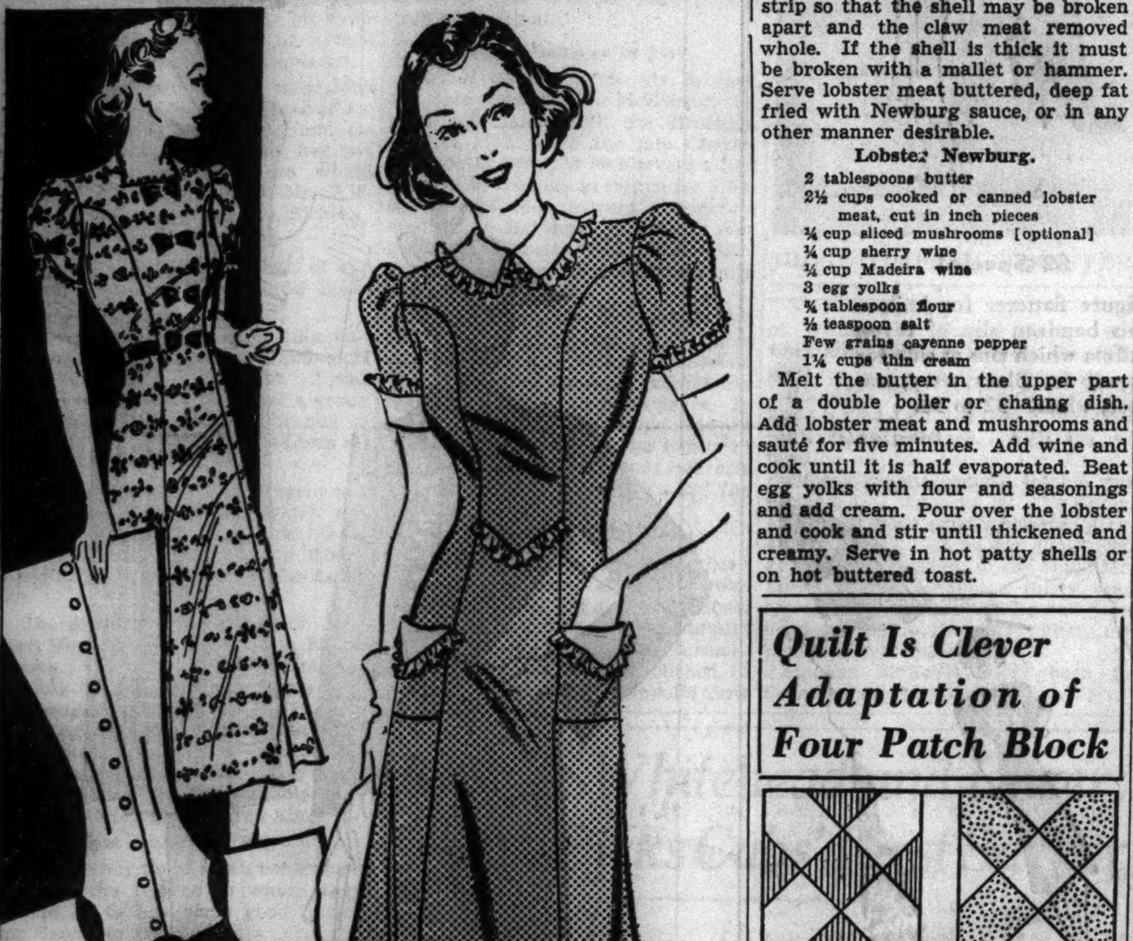
Take off the large and small claws after lobsters have been cooked, and separate the tail from the body. Cut the thin shell of the tail with scissors or can opener, and remove meat whole. Remove intestinal vein from the tail. Hold the body shell firmly in the left hand and, with the first two fingers and the thumb of the other hand, draw out the body, leaving the inedible stomach and part of the liver in the shell. Remove the liver by shaking the shell. Discard lungs. Break body through the middle and separate the bones, picking out the meat between them. Separate large claws at joints. If the shell is thin a knife may be used to cut off a strip so that the shell may be broken apart and the claw meat removed whole. If the shell is thick it must be broken with a mallet or hammer. Serve lobster meat buttered, deep fat fried with Newburg sauce, or in any other manner desirable.

Lobster Newburg.

2 tablespoons butter
2½ cups cooked or canned lobster meat, cut in inch pieces
¼ cup sliced mushrooms [optional]
¼ cup sherry wine
¼ cup Madeira wine
3 egg yolks
¾ tablespoon flour
⅓ teaspoon salt
Few grains cayenne pepper
1¼ cups thin cream

Melt the butter in the upper part of a double boiler or chafing dish. Add lobster meat and mushrooms and sauté for five minutes. Add wine and cook until it is half evaporated. Beat egg yolks with flour and seasonings and add cream. Pour over the lobster and cook and stir until thickened and creamy. Serve in hot patty shells or on hot buttered toast.

Frock Pretty in Cottons



WOMAN'S AND MISS' HOME FROCK.

The season is not far off when you will need a wide variety of cotton frocks, both for the home and for daytime wear. The pattern offered today takes care of both problems. The model you make may be either very plain and utilitarian, or dressy and feminine. The sketch at the left shows a version delightful for resort and town wear this summer. It has a square neckline and puffed sleeves, both trimmed with lace or braid edging. Ribbon bows to match those on the bodice, and at the waist, are used on the sleeves. Paneling achieves wonderful fit for this garment, and infinite chic, too. Printed cottons, linens, and wash silks are the fabrics to bear in mind.

For household duties nothing could be more practical yet smart than the model sketched at the right. It has a Peter Pan collar and trim cuffs edged with ruffling. The same trim is used on the two pockets, and more of the ruffling defines the waistline.

Style No. 2064 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

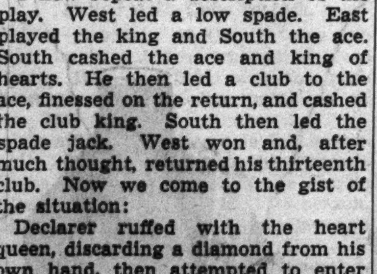
Quilt Is Clever Adaptation of Four Patch Block



The Seasons.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"The Seasons" is a clever adaptation of the original four patch pattern. It was pieced in Massachusets about a century and a half ago. It contains more colors than quilting custom ruled at that time, but clearly defines the changes of the year. This 13½ inch block is used to design a coverlet composed entirely of "The Seasons." The blocks are set together with three inch bands of material, and are surrounded by a five inch border and a one-half inch bias binding. The overall dimensions of the quilt are 89½ by 106 inches.

According to CULBERTSON

MORE IN SORROW THAN IN ANGER.

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

The storm that has descended upon my poor, defenseless head, all because of a certain hand published in my column under date of Feb. 4, confirms what I have suspected for a long time, namely, that many readers follow these daily hands from a "double dummy" point of view. I have received so many letters chiding my praise of a defender in the hand mentioned that, partly in self-defense and partly in a desire to throw more light on the situation, I shall repeat the hand today with a fuller explanation of why I enthusiastically approved a defender's play and why I did not criticize the victim [declarer]. This was the hand:

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 clubs	Pass
6 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

I now repeat a description of the play. West led a low spade. East played the king and South the ace. South cashed the ace and king of hearts. He then led a club to the ace, finessed on the return, and cashed the club king. South then led the spade jack. West won and, after much thought, returned his thirteenth club. Now we come to the gist of the situation:

Declarer ruffed with the heart queen, discarding a diamond from his own hand, then attempted to enter his hand with the diamond ace to draw East's last trump. Unfortunately, East had discarded his singleton diamond on the thirteenth club and now could ruff the diamond lead. From Maine and California, not to mention in-between points, poured in the reproaches. "It was all very well," the average letter said, "to praise West's defense, but why did you not point out that declarer had played like a nitwit, that all he had to do on the thirteenth club was discard a diamond from dummy, ruff in his own hand, lead to the heart queen, drawing East's last trump, lead a diamond back to his ace, dropping the jack, and then finesse against the queen?"

May I point out that declarer's entire play was based on the fact that, not being gifted with an abnormally long neck, or second sight, he did not know that he could play the diamond suit without losing a trick! Had he known that East's diamond jack was blank he hardly would have gone through an elaborate semi-stripping process. All he would have to do was take out the trumps, lead the diamond ace, and push the eight spot through West. In this way he could have made all thirteen tricks without even taking the club finesse!

When the thirteenth club was led declarer would have been balmy to refuse to ruff in dummy while discarding his losing diamond! How could he tell that East could get rid of his only diamond and ruff the next lead?

I have said all this more in sorrow than in anger.

Chicago Fans Numerous at Hialeah Final

turn to their Barrington house until late in April.

Hialeah Park looked very different Saturday from its appearance Friday from a blimp in which I made a sight seeing tour of Miami and nearby places. From the air the flamingos looked like tiny dots of pink paper, and the lake was so green and murky looking that some one in the party exclaimed, "O, they really should change the water in that little pond."

The yachts, power and sail boats in the canals and basins looked like toys, and cows at a dairy farm near the Hialeah race track looked like insects on the ground. From the air one appreciates the perfection of the Villa Viscaya, the beautiful estate in Coconut grove built by the late James Deering, even more than from the ground, for one can see the formal gardens in their entirety. The estate is not open this year.

Mr. Deering's niece, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, is occupying her own house in Coconut grove and her mother, Mrs. Charles Deering, is in her place, also in the grove, but farther out of town. Mr. McCormick will join Mrs. McCormick this week and later in the spring their three sons will come to spend their Easter vacations, Deering and Brooks from Yale and Roger from Groton.

Another interesting sight from the air is a never completed huge building started in the boom days as a hotel in which to house Hialeah fans and now used as a place in which to raise chickens and mushrooms. Entirely different, but also interesting, is the air view of Mr. and Mrs. William Kissam Vanderbilt's Terminal island, a large triangular island across the ship channel from Miami Beach. It is a gorgeous place, only partly cultivated.

Good Habits Among Best Things Parents Can Help a Child To

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

There are so many things we want for our children and want to do for them. But most of us are wise enough to realize that good habits are one of the best possessions we can help them to. And by good habits we may mean, specifically, good physical habits of eating, sleeping, bathing, and so on; or broadly, habits of acting such as honesty, industry, unselfishness or what we might call character.

Well, they're all, in the last analysis, pretty much tied up together. In fact, with our little child there is so much of the physical connected with the care of him that the development of his personality, his character and his relation to us is carried on largely while we feed him, bathe him, dress and undress him, and put him to bed, or help him to learn to do these things for himself.

As a child first conforms and then learns to do things himself, self-control is gained and good attitudes are established.

WEDDING

Announcement is made of the marriage last Friday of Miss Sydney Morton, daughter of Dr. Charles Hay Morton of Cape Girardeau, Mo., to John B. Hammond, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Y. Hammond of Norwalk, Conn. The wedding took place in the chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Chicago, followed by a dinner for the immediate families at the home of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Hammond Sturgis, in Lake Forest. Mr. Hammond and his bride are at home in the Marshall Field Garden apartments.

Lives There a Woman Who Is Happy Without Lipstick?

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Lipstick is the one article in the cosmetic line without which a woman can't bear to be. From conversations heard over various cosmetic counters one understands that she will stint on lunches, if necessary, in order that she may have just the right lipstick. She wants her lips to give to the world the impression of glowing health.

No matter how busy or in what a hurry she may be, she always will take time to put on lipstick. It fills her with confidence and a hope that it will add the moist gleam one sees on the lips of a child—the lips of youth.

Lipstick should be applied generously to the upper lip, following the natural outline. Press lips together to transfer to lower lip. Then blend with fingertips to work the color in evenly, and to remove any excess. When there is too heavy a coating, lipstick is bound to get on the teeth, an unlovely sight. Excess lipstick may be removed with lipstick tissue. Place tissue between lips and press.

Lipstick and rouge must match in color.

Nice things can be done with lipstick. Actually you can reshape lips that have not flattering outlines.

For mouth too wide, or lips too thick, concentrate coloring toward the center, letting it fade away toward the outer corners of lips.

Give fullness to too thin lips by extending color to the edges, even going a bit beyond the natural outline.

Give length to a very small mouth by carrying color clear to the end of the lips.

If one lip is fuller, shape the smaller one to match.

If you wear glasses be generous in application of lipstick, otherwise the glasses will stand out more prominently than any other feature.

Give some time to finding the most flattering lipstick. Experiment with different shades until you find the most harmonious one.

For pale, ivory or creamy toned skin—vivid red.

For purplish skin tones—raspberry and ruby shades.

For pinkish hued skins—rose colored lipsticks.

For yellow skin tones—orange-reds.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

From the notebook:

A survey of the various beauty establishments which have body departments reveals that there is a great spurt of activity in those departments. Women are remembering that Easter and the new outfit aren't far away and that the silhouette must do right by the new suit.

Some are taking exercise, more are combining exercise, baths, and massage. One shop is achieving remarkable results with a new lotion, applied with friction to the spots where fat accumulates.

A fashion expert predicts that this year we'll be seeing a lot more blue and purple tints on gray hair than we've ever seen in this country. The coiffure must be right, the hair well tended and the dress smart to get away with it dashingly.

STAGEHAND AND SANDE WORK A TURF MIRACLE

Howard Colt Proves Trainer Is Right.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Five persons and a horse justly are taking bows for the way the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap was won Saturday. The hero, of course, is Stagehand, the only 3 year old ever to win the race and the only horse that ever has earned as much as $133,800 in the short space of eleven days.

The five persons, listing them in the chronological order in which they came into Stagehand's life are:

Miss Daysie Procter, manager of Elmendorf farm, on which the colt was bred and foaled.

Don't Forget Mr. Widener.

Joseph E. Widener, owner of the farm, owner of the colt's father, Sickle, and the colt's mother, Stagecraft, and the man who bred, raised, and by mere chance sold the colt.

Col. Maxwell Howard, international Beau Brummel and sportsman and wealthy paper manufacturer of Dayton, O., who bought the colt.

Earl Sande, who taught the colt how to run and trained him for his two big California engagements.

Nick Wall, jocky, whose light weight in the saddle had a lot to do with Stagehand's victory by a nose over the old champion, Seabiscuit.

The story really opened when Miss Procter, world famous manager of Joe Widener's farm near Lexington, decided again to put one of her pet theories into practice—she would breed a Fair Play mare to Mr. Widener's fine foreign bred sire, Sickle.

Just Another Colt.

So was arranged the birth of the world's newest thoroughbred horse sensation.

He was just another healthy colt on the rolling slopes of Elmendorf farm until last year when, as a 2 year old, he was selected as one of a group of horses which Widener planned to race at his Hialeah Park track in Florida.

In this shipment was Stagehand's full brother, Sceneshifter, which was a year older. What a time these brothers must have had on Stagehand's first venture from the home lot.

The scene now shifts to Col. Maxwell Howard's winter home in Miami Beach. Throughout a lifetime of owning horses, watching them run, and wagering on them, Col. Howard had one firm conviction—that Earl Sande knew more about horses than any contemporary. His jocky days over, Sande now was available as a trainer. Col. Howard hired him.

What Horses to Buy?

Immediately there was a conference between the two as to where they should go to buy some good horses for Sande to train.

Sande, good judge of horseflesh that he is, saw eye to eye with Miss Procter. In his estimation there could be no better combination than that of the blood of one of America's greatest horses with that of one of the best from Europe.

Sande knew where his new employer could buy good horses because one of the last to hold his contract as a jocky was Owner Widener. Sande had spent much time on Elmendorf farm each spring and fall working with the young racing stock.

So Sande and his new boss went to Hialeah. They purchased Sceneshifter, a 3 year old, from Widener and were about to depart when Dan Stewart, the Widener trainer, suggested that for a few more dollars he would throw in Stagehand, which never had started a race. The offer was accepted.

Looks Like a Bargain.

The amount involved in the sale never has been made public. The story is, however, that Col. Howard was to get Sceneshifter for $12,500 and that by paying $2,500 more he got both horses.

Stagehand, like his brother Sceneshifter, did not win a race as a 2 year old. Now all the world knows what he has done in California during the last two weeks and a half of his early 3 year old campaign. The Santa Anita handicap was his sixth start of the year. He has won five of them and was second in the other.

This places him in the unique position of going into the Kentucky Derby with a reputation to protect instead of one to make.

Least discussed of all events leading up to the victorious race Stagehand ran Saturday was Sande's engagement of Jocky Nick Wall to ride him rather than one of the many riders who were nearer at hand.

Sande Remembers Wall.

Stagehand's weight assignment for the Santa Anita handicap was 100 pounds. There are perhaps 100 jockies in this country who ride at that weight. The best of all the 100 pounders Sande knew to be Nick Wall, a veteran with powerful hands and legs, who beat Sande more than once back in the days when Earl was riding a top weight horse and Wall one with a feather on his back.

Sande had often said to himself,

S. W. McKeever, President of Brooklyn Dodgers, Dies

New York, March 7 [Monday].—Stephen W. McKeever, principal owner of the Brooklyn Baseball club of the National league, its president since 1932 and an officer of the organization for a quarter of a century, died early today in his home in Brooklyn. He was 85 years old.

He had been ill for a week. At his home relatives said a cold had developed into pneumonia.

McKeever was the oldest president in the National league.

Mr. McKeever succeeded Frank B. York as president of the club, ending a seven year internal feud in the club's directorate.

Joined Dodgers in 1912.

Mr. McKeever, with his brother, the late Edward W. McKeever, became associated with the Brooklyn club in 1912, when the late Charles H. Ebbetts gave the McKeevers a half interest in the club in return for $750,000 needed to construct a concrete stadium in Brooklyn at what is now known as Ebbetts field. The brothers, who were in the contracting business, built the plant.

The stadium was completed in 1913 and Edward McKeever was elected vice president and Stephen treasurer. They formed an amicable triumvirate that lasted almost thirteen years. In April, 1925, both Ebbetts and Edward McKeever died within two weeks of each other, and the two half interests passed to Stephen McKeever and the Ebbetts heirs.

Robinson Named President.

Wilbert Robinson, who had been managing the team since 1914, was elected president, but a rift developed, and for the next few years the affairs of the club were in a state of turmoil. Temporary peace was established in February, 1929, with the appointment of William F. [Dutch] Carter, one time star Yale pitcher, as the fifth member of the board of directors.

Robinson was deposed as president by Mr. York, but received a two year contract as manager. With the expiration of the period the Ebbets-Robinson régime ended. Robbie was succeeded as manager by Max Carey. McKeever stood solidly behind Carey, and on Oct. 12, 1932, he was announced as the new president of the club. Mr. York resigned, ending a thirty year association during which he had been legal adviser to the club, chiefly for the McKeever interests.

Stephen McKeever was born in Brooklyn on Oct. 31, 1853.

Sox See Whitehead and Cheer; Collins Picks Cubs' First Sacker

Pork Chop Johnny Is a Mere Shadow at 207 Pounds.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 6.—The big feature of today's White Sox practice came at the finish of the drill under a hot sun. Big John Whitehead took off his costume, his sweatshirt and everything and stepped on a scale. The dial read 207 pounds.

Pork Chop Johnny weighed 230 at the close of last season and though he wound up the city series by whipping the Cubs in a very skilful performance, his employers figured the young man's obesity had cost them second place and a possible challenge for first. It was a cold day when Whitehead tipped over the Cubs. During the summer there were hot days, and hot days frequently caused Johnny to swoon in the middle or late stages of baseball contests.

Dykes Mildly Happy.

The 207 weigh-in pleased Manager James Dykes but did not cause him to become exultant. Down in Texas Johnny has been buying his own victuals. Here and on the American league road he will eat on the ball club. It therefore is not conclusive that Whitehead will remain at his reporting weight simply because he showed up in fine trim.

Whatever causes there are for hope that Whitehead may utilize his excellent pitching talents are based on the fact that he might have reported weighing 300 pounds.

There was no plot this winter as in the preceeding off season to have an agent snatch second and third helpings from Whitehead when he was in his feeding moments. John proved he was too smart for any food spy to stop. It was said he outwitted would-be suppressionists by carrying spare ribs and other viands in his hat, snatching a repeat whenever his guards relaxed their vigilance.

Pitfalls in Big Cities.

Last fall Manager Dykes decided to leave the matter of restraint entirely up to Johnny. A loss of 23 pounds in hibernation certainly is marked

It's the Ripper Himself by Mile in a One Man Poll.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 6.—If you listen to Rip Collins—and you can't help listening because he has an inexhaustible flow of words—there will be some confusion about the Cub first base job.

Manager Charles Grimm already has gone on record in favor of Phil Cavarretta for the place, the Italian boy having done a fine piece of work in that particular spot during the last couple of months of the 1937 season.

The inextinguishable Collins regards the manager's announcement as nothing more than a whim. Today, while taking his first full camp drill of the year, he modestly conceded he was still rightful first baseman and expected to continue in that capacity. Just as proof of his supreme confidence he came into camp with two new first sacker's gloves paid for out of the Collins treasury department.

Fails to Fulfill Expectations.

The matter of who is going to be who at first base may work out along the lines laid down by Grimm and then again may go the other way. Grimm's only reason for favoring the Italian was based on what the latter did last season as compared to Collins' work prior to the mishap in which he suffered a fractured ankle. The Cubs were glad to get Collins from the Cardinals a year ago even though they had to give a man of Lon Warneke's worth in return. Collins, however, failed to come through with the hitting and fielding anticipated.

Now Collins, along with the black marks occasioned by his 1937 performance on defense and offense, has his bad ankle as a possible handicap. He did a lot of leg work, such as skating, during the winter and the ankle gave him no trouble. That however, doesn't mean a complete cure has been effected. A severe leg strain to which any infielder is subject while in action might bring on a limp. Even Rip admits he will worry about such a possibility for at least the next month. If he can't

CAMILLI GOES TO DODGERS FOR CASH AND PLAYER

Phillies Part with Ex-Cub for Reported $60,000.

New York, March 6.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the purchase of First Baseman Dolph Camilli from the Phillies for an undisclosed amount of cash and one player, Eddie Morgan.

In addition to Morgan, a Dodger rookie who played 60 games for Louisville last year and who went to the Philadelphia club Friday, it was estimated the Dodgers paid $60,000 for the slugging first baseman who has been a persistent holdout.

Camilli is expected to take over the regular first base post for the Dodgers, replacing Buddy Hassett, who is being tried out in the outfield.

He'll Shoot at Right Field.

The purchase of Camilli gives Brooklyn a left handed hitter who should be especially effective in Ebbets field, where he can aim at the short right field barrier. He has batted above .300 in his last two seasons with the Phillies and has a mark of .292 for his five seasons in the National league.

Camilli was sixth in the National league batting race last season with a .339 average and compiled a .587 slugging mark to finish third. He hit 27 home runs, finishing four behind Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals and Mel Ott of the New York Giants, who tied for the 1937 title. Camilli also topped the league's regular first basemen in fielding with a .994 mark in 131 games.

Failed with Cubs in 1933.

The purchase of Camilli was the first important deal transacted since Larry MacPhail took over the position of executive vice president of the Dodgers.

Camilli, whose home is in Laytonville, Cal., came up to the Chicago Cubs from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast league during the 1933 season. He failed to produce as a slugger and was sold to the Phillies in 1934.

After a successful 1937 campaign he joined the holdout ranks this spring, and Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies recently termed his salary demands absurd, saying Camilli had demanded $6,000 more than the club offered.

GIANTS, 6; ATHLETICS, 2.

Lake Charles, La., March 6.—(AP)—The New York Giants made it two in a row in their spring exhibition series against the Philadelphia Athletics today by coming through with a 6 to 2 victory behind some midseason pitching by Tom Baker, Bill Lohrman and Harry Gumbert.

New York	012	000	300—6	12	1
Philadelphia	000	000	002—2	4	2

Batteries—Baker, Lohrman, Gumbert, and Mancuso, Danning; Gumpert, Castor, Dean, Potter, McCrabb, and Brucker, Hayes, Wagner.

LOMBARDI TO SIGN.

Tampa, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Big Ernie Lombardi, the Reds' No. 1 catcher and hitter, barged into camp today, much to the surprise of the management. Lombardi, who has been a holdout, said he would sign a contract with General Manager Warren C. Giles tomorrow, and from the smile on his face teammates surmised he would obtain the figure asked, an increase over his $10,000 salary for 1937.

PHIL REGULARS WIN.

Biloxi, Mass., March 6.—(AP)—The Phillies' regulars dealt the rookies a 6 to 4 defeat in an abbreviated intracamp game today. After nicking Wayne La Master for three runs in the first two innings, the rookies filled the bases and scored in the fourth inning. Martin's triple with two on base and Chuck Klein's single off Bucky Walters gave the regulars three runs in the last half of the fourth.

BROWNS REACH CAMP.

San Antonio, Tex., March 6.—(AP)—Gabby Street, beginning his first season as manager of the St. Louis Browns, arrived today with a squad of batterymen. Spring training opens here tomorrow.

PIRATES OPEN DRILL TODAY.

San Bernardino, Cal., March 6.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates rested in their hotel today from the rigors of a meandering transcontinental train ride and made plans for their first workout tomorrow—two days late.

New York, March 6.—(AP)—Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia, a former champion, took the lead in the world pocket billiards tournament tonight when he defeated Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland, 125 to 120 in 17 innings, for his fourth straight victory. Ponzi's four straight victories places him one ahead of Irving Crane, Livonia, N. Y., and Willie Mosconi, Philadelphia, who are tied for second with three victories each. Onofrio Lauri, Brooklyn, knocked Marcel Camp, Albany, N. Y., out of the unbeaten ranks with a 125 to 93 victory in 29 innings.

Lutzke, after a long career with the Indians, concluded organized league play with Chattanooga of the Southern association in 1931. He returned to Milwaukee and for several years played in independent and Milwaukee city leagues.

NEW FIGHTERS WILL DOMINATE GLOVES FINALS

Meet Supreme Test in Friday Bouts.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

When the thirty-two semi-finalists in the eleventh annual Golden Gloves championship tournament report in the Chicago Stadium Friday at noon to weigh in and for their physical examinations, only four of the boys who were members of last year's intercity squad will be numbered in the group. Although Chicago whipped New York's Golden Glovers 9 bouts to 7 last year, it is impossible to predict the outcome of the bouts in Madison Square garden March 21 because the caliber of many of this year's semi-finalists still remains unknown.

Twenty-one thousand people, who already have purchased every ticket in the nation's largest indoor stadium, will have opportunity to judge the ability of this year's contestants. They may be strong enough to whip New York. That also depends on what material the New York News, sponsor of the eastern Golden Gloves, has uncovered.

Chicago Holds Record.

And since Manhattan has not beaten Chicago since 1934—the 1936 matches ended in a tie—you may be certain that New York has done its best to find amateur boxers capable of administering a licking to Father Dearborn's lads such as they received in 1932 when New York won, 12 bouts to 4.

The all time record for the intercity bouts still is held by Chicago. In 1931 the team sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE won from New York, 13 to 3.

One of the four boys who returns to the Stadium Friday for the semi-finals is a defending champion, the only one of last year's eight titleholders who started the three day tournament of champions last Monday. He is Frank Kainrath, of the Chicago Catholic Youth Organization, who again won the C. Y. O. bantamweight title last December, and now needs only two more victories to retain his Golden Gloves honors.

Ability Is Recognized.

Kainrath needs no further introduction to Chicagoans. They long have recognized his ability. His opponents Friday night are Clayton Johnson, Sioux City, Ia.; John Cronin, Detroit, Mich., and Bud Chapman, Terre Haute, Ind.

Johnson is another of last year's group of four who went into the semi-finals and was rewarded with a place on the intercity squad. He campaigned then as a featherweight, but this year he made the 118 pound class. He probably is the most dangerous opponent in Kainrath's path to another Golden Gloves title.

Cornelius Young of the C. Y. O., a champion of that organization who is attending St. Norbert college, returns in the 160 pound class. Cornelius was a member of the 1937 intercity squad and his ambition is to graduate from college and win a golden glove. He is Irish and he comes from Chicago's south side, although he originally qualified for the Tournament of

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Mr. Will Beveridge, the unhappy young man who tends goal for the Montreal Maroons, had seen 127 copies of the National Hocky league puck fly, roll, and scoot past him this season, before he stepped on the ice of the Chicago Stadium last night. In the next sixty minutes, Will saw seven more of them hop into the cage back of him. They were propelled therein by a Chicago Blackhawk team which was still playing elegant hocky after its amazing revival in defeating the fearsome Boston Bruins last Thursday.

Those seven goals not only set a Blackhawk record for the season, but gave them a 7 to 1 triumph. The lone Maroon goal was scored by Bob Gracie in the second period.

This rich victory did not aid the Hawks in making any progress in their argument with the Detroit Wings for third place in the American division and a rôle in the Stanley cup playoff cast. The Wings were doing a little business themselves by licking Boston, 4 to 3, and thus holding the Hawks' lead over them to two games.

Hawks Have Four Games Left.

The Hawks have four more games of the regular schedule left to play, their home final being scheduled against the Montreal Canadiens Thursday, after which they will conclude the season on the road.

By their deportment last night, the boys showed the 10,000 clients present they are fit and ready for the final four contests. Their checking was well nigh perfect, and their passing attained a state never reached before this year.

Mush March and big Earl Seibert had themselves a large night, each collecting two goals. The other three were counted by Cully Dahlstrom, Johnny Gottselig, and Paul Thompson, the last named making sure of his position as American division scoring leader with his goal and two assists.

The Blackhawks scored the first goal of the night in 4 minutes and 49 seconds on a beautifully executed play. Gottselig passed to March, who had been loitering quietly along the right boards. The little wing faked Defense Man Evans out of position, swept around him, and then laid down a pass in front of the Maroon goal, Thompson coming up to bat it home.

Maroons Finally Score.

Late in the period Seibert put on one of the best solo numbers of the year to beat Beveridge with a quick shot. The time was 16:44.

The Maroons finally clicked in the second period, when Gracie, who was standing on top of Karakas' shoetops, flicked the puck into the net. The time was 8:38.

This made the situation somewhat uncomfortable for the Hawks, so they went out and made the score 3 to 1, Dahlstrom lining the puck past Beveridge after a passing foray by Connolly and Shill. The time was 14:32.

With two minutes to play, Evans was sentenced for tripping March. While Evans was off the Hawks scored their fourth goal and Seibert his second of the night. The defense man flicked it past Beveridge after passes from Thompson and Gottselig. The time was 19:35.

Gottselig Gets His Chance.

Gottselig found there was some justice in the first two minutes of the final period. Beveridge had been highly stubborn about allowing the veteran to beat him. John finally delivered at 1:59 by hoisting the puck past the dejected Beveridge, after a series of passes by Trudell and Jenkins.

March and Thompson put on one of the fastest goals of the session eleven minutes later. Paul drove down the left side and made a perfect pass to the flying March, who beat Beveridge while traveling at top speed. The time was 13:01.

With only five seconds to go March decided to have himself his second goal, and taking a pass from Johnson, rifled the puck past Beveridge for the final score in 19:55.

When Christ Tonovic, St. Louis, made eleven consecutive strikes in the five-man division of the American Bowling congress Saturday, he received an ovation from the crowd. Tonovic scored eight consecutive strikes to finish his opening game of 255 and started his second with three more. However, his 648 total compiled on 255, 219, 174 appears wasted, as his Friendly Service teammates gave him little support, totaling only 2,724.

Entering the doubles and singles division yesterday, Tonovic added games of 186, 207, 201, and then finished his A. B. C. workout with a 624 singles score to total 1,866 and be the first man to lead the all-events class with a nine game average of 207.3.

Kopp Ranks Second.

Charles Kopp, also of St. Louis, took second place in the all-events with scores of 589, 596, 657, for 1,842 in five man, doubles and singles competition, respectively.

Marine City Old Bru of Marine City, Mich., shooting on today's early morning mixed squad of regulars and boosters, went into third place in the five man competition with 2,811 on games of 896, 951, and 964. Perry Coal Co. of St. Paul, Minn., moved into fifth place with 2,796 on games of 927, 926, and 943.

Best in yesterday's doubles division were Bruno Gargula and Mette Standish, Detroit, who rolled up a 1,203 total on games of 392, 411, 400, to take over second in the doubles, six pins back of the leading John Colombo-Jules Benetti team from Clinton, Ind.

Second best doubles total of yesterday's matinée program was turned in by Charley Kopp and Elmer Schnell of St. Louis, who totaled 1,200.

More St. Louis.

St. Louis bowlers also did well in the individual competition. Scoring games of 254, 223, 198, Steve Kenny totaled 675 for third place. Frank Hoeschen clustered strikes for an opening score of 258 and then added a pair of 206 games.

Booster teams will take over the schedule in the five-man rolling tonight. A total of 120 Chicago lineups are scheduled on three of the four squads. Last night's leading scorers:

C. Y. O. Tied by Hornets Again, 2 to 2

A goal by Bill Savela from center ice in the final minutes of play gave the C. Y. O. Shamrocks, leaders in the Chicago arena amateur hocky league, a 2 to 2 tie with the Chicago Hornets yesterday in the arena. An overtime period failed to break the deadlock, the second straight played by the two squads.

In the other contest on the program the Waukegan Rockets, led by Eddie Janelle, routed the Whiting Macks, 9 to 0. Janelle picked up five points on a pair of goals and three assists to raise his season's total to 29 and break a tie for the league lead with Savela.

Collins Sure It's Collins on First for Cubs

play regularly or Cavarretta proves he is the better man of the pair, Collins will have to confine himself to pinch hitting. Of course, a trade is still possible.

Jurges Must Watch Shoulder.

Another fellow who admits he has a physical flaw that bears watching is Shortstop Bill Jurges who also had his first lengthy practice today. Bill hurt his shoulder last season and instead of taking a long rest insisted on playing. The result was that he finally had to quit altogether. Although he rested for months, the pain continued and he had to go to Chicago in January for treatments. It will take a couple of weeks or more of serious throwing to show whether the socket ailment has vanished.

If Jurges' arm should go dead Grimm will have another problem on his hands. It is not a simple task to find a man of Jurges' skill as a fielder. All the Cubs have now for such an emergency are Tony Lazzeri, the ex-Yankee, and Bob Mattick, a youth purchased from the Los Angeles club, cousin team of the Cubs. Lazzeri, naturally, would be the first choice if anything should happen to Jurges, but Tony's arm is no longer strong enough to take care of the long throw from short to first base.

Lazzeri Tutors Stainback.

Individual tutoring continued today during the two and one-half hour drill. Further effort was made to remove the unnecessary hitch from Tuck Stainback's bat swinging. Lazzeri has been placed in charge of this operation which is going to be difficult. Gabby Hartnett also had one of his pupils on the job. Gabby spent an hour with LeRoy Parmelee, the wild man, trying to get the ex-Giant and ex-Cardinal into the habit of following through in his delivery. The theory is that this will eliminate Parmelee's habit of throwing the ball every place except over the plate.

The annual Cub dance was held last night and Trainer Andy Lotshaw, many years an island waltzing champion, was defeated by Stainback. Andy was more or less perturbed about the loss of the title until the prize was awarded. It was a caged red rooster the tail of which was improved by the presence of an ostrich feather.

Humphreys Jr., Searle Win Protection Shoot

William Humphreys Jr. and John G. Searle won the protection shoot with 90½ points in the weekly trapshoot at Glen View club yesterday. Bob Blackburn won the straight trap event by shooting 98—1—99.

Dogs of Various Breeds to Go on Display April 2

BY BOB BECKER.

Entry blanks for the first annual show of the International Kennel Club of Chicago now are being mailed to thousands of possible show exhibitors in the United States. The show will be held April 2 and 3 in the International Amphitheater, 42d and Halsted streets. The new club recently purchased the Chicago Kennel club and acquired the show rights and privileges of the American Kennel club in the Chicago area.

This will be the first time in the history of dog shows in Chicago that one has been held in the big amphitheater. C. Groverman Ellis, president of the International, announced the dogs will be shown on the first floor of the north wing of the building. All judging will be done in the arena.

The judges largely are from the east. Only one official from the Mississippi valley has been engaged for the show. The list follows:

Harry E. McTavey, Mount Kisco, N. Y., pointers, setters, cocker spaniels, Chesapeake bay retrievers, and several other breeds.

Walter H. Reeves, Belleville, Ont., who has judged in Chicago shows in previous years, Labrador retrievers, wolfhounds, collies, bull terriers, Irish terriers, kerry blues, sealyhams, and several other terrier breeds.

Harold Baker, Huntington, N. Y., springer spaniels; George S. Thomas, Santa Barbara, Cal., Borzois, dachshunde, French bulldogs, Chihuahuas, St. Bernards, and several other breeds. Henry Siebold, Philadelphia, beagles; M. R. Korshin, Media, Pa., Dobermans, sheep dogs, schnauzers, and several other breeds.

Other judges include R. L. Patterson, Madison, N. J.; Anton Rost, Brooklyn, N. Y.; George L. Davis, St. Louis, Mo.; George U. Hammond, New York City; Mrs. Alice H. Kurtz, Pottstown, Pa.; Mrs. L. W. Bonney, New York; Miss Miriam Hall, Bedford, N. Y., and Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge, Madison, N. J., who will pick the best dog in the show.

Mrs. Sophia Shyer, Wife of Coals Manager, Dies

Mrs. Sophia Shyer, 31 years old, 5300 Berenice avenue, wife of Nate Shyer, manager of the Spencer Coals semipro baseball team, died yesterday after a week's illness. Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the chapel at 3654 Roosevelt road. Burial will be in Waldheim cemetery.

down in John's favor at this instant. But there will be no cheering until John has taken a ride around the big league cities, where the curfew rings much later than in John's winter habitat, Ector, Tex.

Monty Stratton, who also took his first workout today, lost weight, eight pounds of it, during the Texas winter. And Dykes wanted him to gain about ten pounds. Monty looks well, however, and says that he is counting on at least twenty victories this season.

The workout today was not largely attended by spectators. Arroyo Seco, scene of much flood damage, was blocked off to flood sightseers and orders were issued to admit only White Sox to Brookside park, which escaped the sweep of water but is in the midst of the barricaded area.

Batting on Wednesday.

There will be no batting practice till Wednesday, but when he found today the diamond had been placed in excellent shape, Dykes permitted some of the boys to engage in a bit of fielding in addition to their running and tossing assignments.

Rupert Thompson, an outfielder by trade, began his drilling at first base, where he may serve in the absence of Zeke Bonura. The former San Diego player showed his greenness around the bag, but he is willing to try hard for the place. Jesse Landrum, with St. Paul last year, frisked a bit at second base. The manager says he expects Landrum to play second this season in those spans when Jackie Hayes is weary or otherwise incapacitated.

JANNOTTA WINS IN DEFENSE OF SQUASH TITLE

Joe Jannotti of the Chicago Athletic association, defending champion, won his second round match in the Chicago District Squash association tournament yesterday at the Lake Shore A. C. He beat F. W. Jones Jr., of the Lawson Y. M. C. A., 15-9, 15-7, 15-5.

Charlie Hoerger, John Marshall club, who is seeded No. 4, also advanced, beating Collier Smith of the Lake Shore A. C., 15-7, 14-15, 15-8, 15-14.

N. U. CLOSES ITS SEASON TONIGHT WITH MICHIGAN

Wildcats Seek 3d Place in Final Standings.

Big Ten Standing

	W.	L.	Pct.	Pts.	O.P.
Purdue	10	2	.833	511	414
Minnesota	9	3	.750	393	358
Northwestern	7	4	.636	385	368
Ohio State	7	5	.583	458	419
Iowa	6	6	.500	417	411
Michigan	5	6	.455	373	345
Wisconsin	5	7	.417	439	449
Indiana	4	8	.333	463	490
Illinois	4	8	.333	428	465
Chicago	2	10	.167	389	537

Northwestern and Michigan will meet at Ann Arbor tonight in the final game of the Big Ten basketball season. The eight other teams have completed their 12 game schedules and the outcome of tonight's clash will affect only the relative positions of the two participants in the final standings. Purdue clinched the title Saturday night by defeating Northwestern, 42 to 39, while Minnesota assured itself of runner-up honors by beating Wisconsin, 35 to 28.

If the Wildcats win tonight they will finish the season in undisputed possession of third place. A defeat will force them to share the position with Ohio State, which has seven victories against five defeats. The Wolverines can finish in a tie for fifth place with Iowa by winning tonight, while a defeat will drop them in a sixth place tie with Wisconsin.

Even Maroons Are Happy.

The current race, which saw Purdue displace Illinois and Minnesota, last year's co-champions, was one of the hardest fought in Big Ten basketball history. Every team can look back upon games in which it soared to the heights.

Chicago, holders of last place, can find solace in having broken a three year record of defeats by whipping Iowa and Illinois. Illinois, hard hit by injuries and the loss of Louis Boudreau, star forward, through ineligibility, had the satisfaction of being one of two teams to turn back Purdue. Ohio handed the Boilermakers their other defeat.

Northwestern, whose showing was one of the surprises of the season, also suffered injuries and ineligibility. Mike McMichael, for two years a leading conference scorer, was lost until near the close of the season as a result of a sprained ankle. Bernard Davis, star guard, was dropped in the midst of the race because of scholastic deficiencies. The severest blow came when Capt. Fred Trenkle, veteran forward, suffered a broken arm in the Ohio State game.

Three Records Broken.

Despite this run of ill luck, the Wildcats remained in the lead until a one point defeat by Iowa enabled Purdue to draw on even terms.

Three Big Ten scoring records were broken during the season. Jewell Young of Purdue accounted for two of them. He set a new all-time scoring record for one season with a total of 184 points. This brought his three year total to 465 points, another all-time mark. Ernest Andres, Indiana guard, set a new Big Ten mark for points scored in a single game when he made 30 points against Illinois last Friday night.

HARRY MacQUINN TAKES FIRST IN ARMORY RACE

THREE 8 ROUND BOUTS FEATURE MARIGOLD CARD

Wyatt and Bolden Meet in First Battle.

Three bouts of eight rounds will feature tonight's show in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. The first principals to take the ring will be King Wyatt of Fort Wayne, Ind., who won the welterweight Golden Gloves championship in Chicago Stadium in 1935, and Nate Bolden, south side middleweight, intercity Golden Gloves winner last year.

Bouts will follow between Billy Celebron of Rockford, welterweight finalist in the 1933 Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions, and Nick Nicholson of Indianapolis, and Varias Milling, aggressive Filipino, now making his home in Chicago, and Lloyd Pine, Barberton, O., junior lightweight.

Before the Wyatt-Bolden bout two matches at four rounds will be held between Johnny Densor, Indianapolis heavyweight, and Emil Campagna, and Tony De Pasquale, north side 150 pounder, and Joe Conrad.

Wyatt will be making his first Chicago appearance as a professional. The Fort Wayne fighter, who deserted the amateurs two years ago, won twelve consecutive victories before fighting ten rounds to a draw with Simon Nebolsky in Dayton, O., Jan. 31.

Ruffy Silverstein and Fritz Von Schacht will meet in a fifteen minute bout on the wrestling card in White City, 63d and South Park avenue, this evening. Other matches on the program, which is topped by Fred Grubmier and Joe Corbett, will bring together Jack Curtis and Jack [Bad Boy] Brown, Jack Roberts and Walter Palmer, and Charley Fox and Ken Fenlon. . . . Pal Silvers, Brooklyn heavyweight, opened training yesterday in Trafton's gymnasium for an eight round bout with Max Marek in Cicero stadium Wednesday by sparring two rounds with Jack Fargo.

Stagehand Is Handiwork of Trainer Sande

"If I ever own a horse or train one that doesn't have to carry more than 100 pounds, Wall will ride him."

When Sande, a week ago, decided to start Stagehand in the handicap Wall was riding in Florida. To ride Stagehand for Sande, Wall would have to hop across the country by plane. He did.

Sande's methods of training Stagehand and his judgment in starting a 3 year old against older horses so early in the year were vindicated when Seabiscuit wilted before the mighty stretch drive of the young son of Sickle-Stagecraft.

A Treat for the Colonel.

To have one of his horses win some money for him is a distinct pleasure for Col. Howard. It nearly always has been the other way round. Col. Howard for many years has been earning money for his horses.

He is no longer young and did not feel up to the trip from Miami Beach to Los Angeles to watch Stagehand in the Santa Anita Derby and the handicap.

One of the great tragedies of Col. Howard's life was the death last year of his only son, Howell, following injuries received in a polo game.

Until Stagehand's meteoric rise to fame there had been a constant argument in the thoroughbred horse country as to whether a cross between Sickle and a daughter of Fair Play would prove successful. Stagehand has ended the argument.

The Santa Anita handicap winner was one of twenty-four foals sired by Sickle in 1935. Thirteen of them won as two year olds, including the six stake winners, Well Rewarded, Cravat and Theen in the United States, Unspeakable and Silver Spear in England and Gossip in France. Well Rewarded and Theen were among the best two year old fillies of last year in America. Gossip generally is rated as the best two year old in France.

It's a Winning Line.

Twenty of Sickle's 106 foals sired in this country are out of daughters of Fair Play. Fifteen of them won, with Stagehand now the best of all the wage earners.

How the life story of Stagehand is going to end no one can say. It can't go very far wrong, for if he stopped in his tracks right now he still would rank among the big money earning horses of all time, and that at the drooling age of three.

The man in the box office says, however, it looks to be a run of at least two more years to him.

New Fighters to Dominate Glove Finals

Champions in the sectional meet at Loyola university.

The Benna Brothers.

One of his opponents Friday night will be Joe Benna, who qualified from the Michigan City tournament. Joe has a brother, John, who also has qualified for the championships in the 135 pound class. Last year Joe fought as a welterweight. He was born in Terre Haute, Ind., the section from which his brother came to the Tournament of Champions, but he now is employed at the Inland Steel company, Indiana Harbor, Ind., where he has been coached by Micky Patrick, one of the younger and most promising of amateur boxing instructors.

The other contestants in the middleweight class are Shelton Bell of Wilberforce university, Dayton, O., from which center came Al Wardlow, who last year won the Golden Gloves, intercity, and international championships, and George Mitchell of Kokomo, Ind. This is the first time in the nine years Kokomo has been sending teams to the Tournament of Champions that one of its boys has qualified for the semi-finals.

21 Cities Represented.

Twenty-one cities, including Chicago, still are represented in the 1938 tournament. Six are from Chicago. Five of these boys will represent the C. Y. O. and the other, Orlando Trotter, in the 175 pound class, will wear the colors of the Savoy Athletic club.

Contestants will report between 12 noon and 2 p. m. Friday at the Stadium for their physical examinations and to be weighed. Pairings for the semi-finals will be made immediately after all have reported.

After the championships Friday night the intercity squad of thirty-two will be named. These boys will report to Head Coach John Behr at the Illinois Athletic club Saturday and on the following day will begin light training in the ring. On March 16 the team will leave for New York.

From this group of thirty-two boys, several of whom undoubtedly will be drawn from earlier rounds of the Tournament of Champions, will come Chicago's squad, eight of whom will meet the champions of Europe in the bouts in the Stadium May 18.

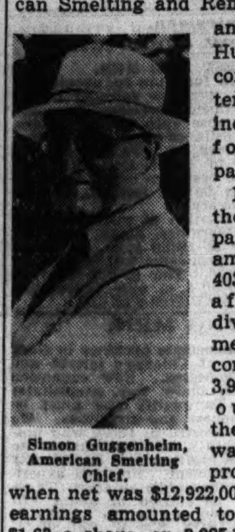
AM. SMELTING, PURE OIL EARN MORE LAST YEAR

Rising Taxes Told by Henry M. Dawes.

The Pure Oil company, the American Smelting and Refining company, and the Niagara Hudson Power corporation yesterday reported increased profits for 1937, compared with 1936.



Simon Guggenheim, American Smelting Chief.

Net income of the Pure Oil company last year amounted to $11,403,805, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $2.15 a common share on 3,982,031 shares outstanding at the year-end. This was the highest profit since 1926, when net was $12,922,000. In 1936 net earnings amounted to $7,658,000, or $1.63 a share, on 3,285,120 shares.

Henry M. Dawes, president, in his annual message to stockholders said the company during the year simplified its financial structure.

Short Term Loans Retired.

Retirement of $5,000,000 of short term bank loans and $28,500,000 in sinking fund notes and redemption of 76,620 shares of 8 per cent preferred stock was set forth.

Dawes said the upward trend of taxes continued in 1937 and that gasoline and other product taxes paid or accrued amounted to about 35 million dollars.

Net income of the American Smelting and Refining company and subsidiaries for 1937 totaled $18,285,425, or $6.54 a share on 2,191,669 shares of common stock. This compared with 1936 net income of $17,131,035, or $6.85 a share on 1,829,940 shares.

Taxes $3.74 a Share.

Simon Guggenheim, president, told stockholders that estimated taxes, including social security levies, amounted to $3.74 per share on the common stock in 1937.

The annual report of Niagara Hudson Power, to be given to stockholders tomorrow, shows a consolidated net income of $10,502,271, which, on the basis of the present capitalization, was equal to 84 cents a share on the common stock after preferred dividend deductions. This compares with $10,161,783, or 68 cents a share on the common stock outstanding in 1936.

Baltimore and Ohio.

[This is the second of a series of articles on railroads. Inquiries on other railroads or on securities of other kinds of companies should be addressed to the Investors' Guide department.]

First chartered under Maryland laws Feb. 28, 1847, the Baltimore and Ohio has grown from a small road operating a few miles of track to one of the major systems of the country in both mileage and revenues. Its 7,540 miles of track extend from the New York in the east to Chicago and St. Louis in the west.

Serving as it does the industrial sections of the nation, the Baltimore and Ohio has been particularly vulnerable to fluctuations in business activity. During the last few years the road has been forced to borrow heavily from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The latest loan, granted in January, was $8,233,000, bringing the total owed the RFC to nearly $70,000,000.

The vulnerability of the B. & O. to business recessions can be accounted for in part by the lack of diversification of its trafic. Products of mines have contributed between 60 and 65 per cent of total freight tonnage in recent years. Manufactured products and miscellaneous goods have contributed another 24 to 28 per cent.

As a result of the current recession, freight revenues of the road since August, 1937, have lagged behind those in the corresponding months a year before. Most recent figures show that the road's revenues are now down about 20 per cent from the 1937 volume.

Due to the upward trend of trafic early last year, the road had total 1937 revenues of $169,436,436, compared with $168,992,881 in 1936, but higher expenses resulted in a net loss of $720,695 in 1937 against net income of $4,538,975, or 85 cents a common share, in 1936. The road had heavy losses in 1935, 1934, and 1932.

Interest charges on the road's large funded debt amounted to $31,017,803 in 1937, and were only 98 per cent covered. In December, 1937, alone, charges were only 61 per cent covered.

Current assets at the end of 1937 totaled $29,987,154, compared with current liabilities of $31,934,104.

The road has outstanding 588,631 shares of $100 par 4 per cent noncumulative preferred stock and 2,562,953 shares of $100 par common stock. All obligations and securities of the road must be regarded as highly speculative.

Winter Wheat Placed Below Yield in '37

A winter wheat harvest of about 668 million bushels is indicated on the basis of conditions prevailing March 1, according to Nat C. Murray, statistician of Clement, Curtis & Co. This estimated production is 17 million bushels less than the actual yield in 1937.

Murray says the condition of the crop on March 1 showed an improvement over the Dec. 1 condition, and the winter killing has been comparatively light. He rated the crop at 77.1 per cent of normal on March 1, compared with 73.7 per cent on March 1, 1937, and an average March 1 condition of 76.9 per cent over a ten year period.

Other Estimates Larger.

Murray's appraisal of the crop outlook is not as favorable as that of some other crop authorities. Some estimates have suggested that production this season may run well above the 1937 yield. The government will make its first production forecast next month. It made no definite estimate in December but said that acreage and then prevailing conditions indicated a yield in the neighborhood of 630 million bushels.

Reviewing the March 1 estimates he has made over the last eight years, Murray pointed out that appraisals have exceeded the actual harvest returns in five years and have proved to be underestimates three times.

The favorable crop outlook and the prospect that the United States will begin the new harvest season with a substantial wheat surplus are acting as an effective check on prices.

STEEL OUTPUT DIPS TO 29½ PCT.; ONLY CHICAGO SHOWS GAIN

Steel ingot production last week dipped 1 point to 29.5 per cent of theoretical capacity, the magazine Steel estimated yesterday. The Chicago district was the only steel making center to show higher operations, with a gain of 2 points to 26.5 per cent.

Pittsburgh dropped a point to 27 per cent, Birmingham, 3 points to 58; New England, 12 points to 15; Cincinnati, 25 points to 10; Detroit, 8 points to 35, and Cleveland 3 points to 28 per cent of capacity.

"Improvement in steel buying is slight and irregular," Steel said, "but most mills find somewhat broader demand and a gradual, though slow, tendency upward."

With scrap prices largely nominal in the absence of buying, except for export, lower quotations last week resulted in a decline of 12 cents in Steel's composite of steelmaking grades to $13.13 a ton.

'TRAMP' MONEY NOW HOOFING IT BACK TO EUROPE

New York, March 6.—(AP)—"Hot money"—the footloose foreign capital which a year ago had federal authorities pondering ways of stopping it from crowding into the United States—recently has been returning to Europe, with bankers glad to see it go.

To facilitate the return flow the United States treasury has relinquished small amounts of the $5,500,000,000 which was added to its gold store in a four year shift of capital across the ocean. The latest withdrawal from the "inactive" gold store was $9,975,000.

In recent months banks have reported a steady decline in deposits held for foreign accounts. New York City banks last week reported $328,000,000 in such deposits, compared with $592,000,000 early in July.

What caused the reversal in the flow of gold to America? Foreign exchange men mainly point to the United States business slump.

Everyday Economics

Insurance Premium.

Probably nothing connected with life insurance is so confusing to the average policyholder as the rather fundamental matter of what becomes of the money he pays as an insurance premium. All policyholders know they get "protection" for their money, but few actually know how an insurance company allows for various funds in calculating what the policyholders is charged for his insurance.

When a policyholder pays an insurance premium on the usual policy, he pays the actual cost of providing the insurance, contributes a small amount to expenses of the company, and pays a certain sum into a reserve fund. This reserve fund might be described as a sort of self-insurance fund.

The older a person gets the more it actually costs the company to provide insurance, but the longer the policy is in force the larger the self-insurance fund becomes. As the self-insurance fund grows, the amount of money the company has at risk decreases.

An example will illustrate. At the time a $1,000 policy is taken out, the company has approximately $1,000 at risk. If at the end of twenty-five years' payments into the self-insurance fund plus interest total $500, the company only has $500 at risk. If the policyholder lives as long as expected, the self-insurance fund should equal the face value of the policy.

Tomorrow: Economic self-sufficiency.

U.S. Treasury Offers Bonds in Refinancing

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau announced today the terms of a treasury refinancing operation which, fiscal officials said, indicated a slightly easier money market.

At a press conference the secretary announced the offering of 10½ year, 2½ per cent treasury bonds in exchange for the $455,175,500 of 3 per cent treasury notes which mature March 15.

Three months ago the treasury offered bonds of an eight year maturity carrying a 2½ per cent coupon.

Calls Conditions "Better."

Calling attention to the longer maturity of the new issue, Secretary Morgenthau said "conditions are better in the government bond market."

The offering is limited to the amount of notes tendered in exchange. Cash subscriptions will not be received. The bonds will not be redeemable before maturity, Sept. 15, 1948.

The secretary revealed the treasury would dip into its cash box to the extent of $562,642,000. It will do this to pay off $400,642,000 in special treasury bills maturing immediately after March 15 and to meet $162,000,000 of interest charges on the public debt which fall due on March 15.

Tax Flow to Start Soon.

Beginning March 15, when the first quarterly instalment of income tax payments is due, the treasury's cash will be replenished. Estimates in government fiscal circles are that approximately $700,000,000 will pour into the treasury coffers.

Asked whether the treasury would sell more than $200,000,000 of bills, Morgenthau said he would not be able to tell until around March 24. The treasury is now in the process of borrowing between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 in the bill market.

WORK AND WAGES IN ILLINOIS SHOW GAIN DURING 1937

Average employment in 1937 in all reporting Illinois industries was 10.6 per cent above the 1936 average level, according to a summary of labor and construction conditions made by the Illinois department of labor. Pay rolls for the year 1937 were 20.4 per cent above the 1936 average.

During the year 1,796 wage rate adjustments were made with all but ten being decided in favor of workers. Approximately 372,000 workers, or about 55 per cent of all workers employed in establishments reporting to the state department of labor, had their wages increased during 1937.

Kerlyn Company Reports Oil Well in New Field

OIL CO-OP FINDS GOING IS ROUGH; ACTIVITIES CUT

Madison Group Pays No Dividends.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Madison, Wis., March 6.—[Special.]—The Madison Oil Coöperative, organized four years ago to effect savings for consumers in the purchase of gasoline and other petroleum products, has curtalled its operations and reorganized its management because of unsatisfactory financial results, inquiry today disclosed. The coöp has disposed of two of its stations and is now operating only one unit.

Ralph Anderson, who was made manager of the coöperative last week, said today that no estimate could be made of the results for the current fiscal year which ends two months hence. He said, however, that no dividends were being paid to stockholders at present.

Charges Regular Prices.

The coöperative sells gasoline, grease, and oil and other products at the same prices charged by competing private companies. It has solicited business from Madison residents with the promise that the profits would be turned back to consumers in patronage dividends.

Anderson explained that because the stockholders of the coöp are not receiving dividends at present there is nothing available for rebates to other patrons of the company. When funds are available for patronage dividends, he said, the money would be credited to customers on a subscription to stock in the coöperative. This means that the consumer would not get a cash dividend by buying from the coöp, but would in time, if operations are profitable, be given stock in the organization with the credits accruing to him on his purchases.

Linked to Political Group.

The oil concern is one of the three consumer coöperatives launched four years ago by a group of prominent individuals identified with the La Follette state régime and members of the University of Wisconsin faculty.

The largest of the three is the Madison Consumers' Coöperative, Inc., milk and dairy distributing firm, which is now seeking a revision in milk prices in Madison, claiming it cannot operate profitably under present conditions. Request for a revision of prices has been made by the coöperative to the state department of agriculture and markets. If the request is granted the retail price of 11 cents a quart will have to be raised or producers paid less.

View of Private Leaders.

The Coöperative Cleaners and Tailors is the third consumer coöp, sponsored by the same group, operating here. A new manager, Max Sklar, was put in charge of the business a few days ago. He said today the organization will not pay a dividend to stockholders this year.

Officials of competitive companies said today that the coöperatives do not constitute a serious threat to their business. They pointed out that the coöps have had difficulty in making ends meet when operating on the same profit margin as the privately owned and operated enterprises.

The political sponsorship which the coöps enjoy, however, is a cause of uneasiness, particularly to the dairy companies whose business is under rigid state regulation.
